Soviet Reports Show Crime In Russia Is on Downgrade

MOSCOW, March 29.—(AP)—Crime in Soviet Russia appears to be on the downgrade, especially murder and "bootlegging," according to the figures just completed by the national institute for research into crime and criminals.

The institute's statistics for the first six months of 1930, which are the latest and thus far are unpublished in Russia, show 4,532 convictions in the Soviet Union for murder (the figures do not include the smaller republics) against 7,431 for the first six months of 1929.

In a similar period of 1929 there were 21,304 convictions for bootlegging, or illegal manufacture of vodka, the national fiery drink, whereas there were only 8,470 arrests for this during the same period last year.

Production of liquor is a government monopoly.

Convictions for holdups in 1929 totaled 2,164 against 1,469 last year, while sexual crimes dropped from 4,854 to 3,106 in 1930.

There is no death sentence for murder in Russia, the maximum penalty being 10 years' imprisonment. Death by shooting is meted out to some political prisoners only, but figures in this category were not obtainable.

According to Professor David Rubenstein, head of the institute, the decrease in crime is due to liquidation of unemployment, and in the country districts to the collective farm movement.

During the past few years bootlegging has been of considerable annoyance to the government. Bootleggers usually get a prison sentence of from three months to three years. Rubenstein declared the Soviets are increasing their efforts to reform criminals rather than to punish them. New reformatories are being constructed in various parts of the Union for both men and women as well as for "homeless waifs," who several years ago roamed the country.

Many reform schools for youths have no guards, the institutions being conducted on the honor system with the boys and girls composing their own government.

There are no private detectives in the Soviet Union.

The regular traffic police and others collect fines for minor violations without bringing the offenders into court. Persons are fined about 50 cents for getting on and off moving street cars, and from $1.50 to $5 for fighting and $2.50 for motor traffic violations.

Sports and Not Travel Perilous Pastimes--Claim

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP)—Here with are some statistics that may set you giggling.

It is more dangerous to play golf than to ride on a railroad train. It is twice as hazardous to play baseball as to be a passenger on a street car.

Dancing is more likely to end in an accident than is a ride on the subway.

The Aetna Life Insurance Company has figured these things out in an analysis of claims paid for personal accidents from 1922 to 1930, inclusive.

The home was found to be a com-

GRAF IN BAD STORM ON HUNGARY CRUISE

BUDAPEST, Hungary, March 29.—(AP)—The Graf Zeppelin, cruising to Hungary on one of her first flights this spring, ran into one of the worst storms she ever has encountered, and terminated her trip from Friedrichshafen here this morning.

She moored for 15 minutes while Nicholas Horthy, Hungarian regent, welcomed Captain Lehman, the commander, and a number of passengers, then cast off and started back for her home port.

paratively unsafe place. More than 18 per cent of all personal claim accidents of the last nine years occurred there. Most of the household misfortunes were due to falls, either downstairs, from chairs, in bathtub, through trapdoors, off ladders—and even while getting in and out of bed.

MORE SNOW DESCENDS ON FRIGID MID-WEST

Temperatures, However, Improve in Storm-Ridden States.

KANSAS CITY, March 29.—(AP) Fresh snow fell today in the Rocky mountains on the heels of a spring blizzard which took at least 15 lives there and in the prairie states.

Today's fall, however, was accompanied by moderate temperatures and while hampering re-establishment of communications with isolated communities where it is feared more dead may be found, was not expected to bring the tragedy of last week's storm.

Snow was falling over all Colorado, most of Wyoming, western Montana and northern New Mexico. The sun shone in Texas, Oklahoma, eastern and central Kansas and Missouri. Snow was reported in northwestern Kansas.

The latest additions to the list of dead were three sheep herders. The body of Charles Bench, 50, Wyoming herder, was found a half mile from his camp wagon at which searchers found his four-year-old son, and dog, safe. Juan Sclando and an unidentified herder were the New Mexico victims.

The 15 survivors of a stalled school bus near Towson, Col., where five pupils died from the cold, were reported recovering in a Lamar (Col.) hospital. Airplanes and motor cars were used in their rescue after 30 hours in the drifts.

A tremendous loss of live stock and the killing of much fruit resulted from the storm.

Train communication from Colorado into Kansas City was reported near normal. Much live travel still was held up by drifted highways.

Hoover Is Expected To Get Support From G.O.P. in South

C. Bascom Sloop Says Virginia Delegation Will Back President for Renomination in 1932.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(Special.)—Southern republicans will be true to President Hoover at the 1932 convention, according to leaders from that section of the country, and will refuse to travel along with Colonel Horace Mann, who was the leading campaigner for the south for the president in 1928, but since has lost favor with the administration over patronage matters.

Commenting on this situation, C. Bascom Sloop, republican national committeeman from Virginia, for many years a member of congress from his state and also personal secretary to Calvin Coolidge, said:

"The Virginia delegation of the republican national convention next year will be 100 per cent for the renomination of President Hoover. I don't care how emphatically you quote me on that."

"Furthermore," continued Mr. Sloop, "I predict that Colonel Mann will not have more than 10 votes in the convention and will be a so-called organization when the time comes."

Mr. Sloop discounted the statement that Colonel Mann had been a director of the republican campaign in the south or that Colonel Mann had carried the four southern states for Mr. Hoover in 1928, one of which was Virginia.

"I had it distinctly understood that Colonel Mann was to have nothing to do with the campaign in Virginia," said Mr. Sloop.

Perry Howard, republican national committeeman for Mississippi, said that he knew nothing of Colonel Mann's plans. He said, however, that the republican organization in Mississippi was in a strong position and intimated that it would certainly be found working with the administration and not against it in the next convention.

Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the republican national committee, declared that the republican organization in the southern states were in better shape than they had been for a long time.

He said there was nothing new in the statement that Colonel Mann was out to bring about a new order in the matter of patronage in the southern states and that it had been announced months ago that he and other southern republicans who were displeased with the present set-up would seek to control delegations to the coming convention.

Mr. Lucas said, however, that he had not understood that the purpose of Colonel Mann was to take delegations to the national convention and vote them against President Hoover. If that is his present purpose, Mr. Lucas said, then there had been a change.

Colonel Mann declined today to say whether the southern delegates whom he proposes to send to the republican national convention will be instructed to vote against the renomination of Mr. Hoover.

His friends, however, made the assertion that it was an anti-Hoover movement and that the purpose was to sidetrack Mr. Hoover and bring about the nomination of President Coolidge or another equally "available."

Hostile to Party.

In the absence of any denial of the story that he was aiming to build up an anti-Hoover movement, Colonel Mann's organization was looked upon today as being hostile to the administration.

If he could line up all the southern delegates to the convention, Colonel Mann would control 232 delegates. He insisted today that the south would send a solid block of delegates to the convention demanding a "new order of politics."

He also said that next fall national headquarters would be opened here, in which effect would be in opposition to the republican national committee. The purpose is to extend the organization beyond the limits of the southern states and to go into states of the north and west.

The delegation which will make up the bloc of 232 delegates, or almost a quarter of the total representation at the convention, Mann said, would be from Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Tennessee and Kentucky.

"The republicans of the south," Mann said, "are determined to have a solid delegation of men and women at the 1932 convention, resolute in their purpose and firm in their convictions that a new order of politics shall henceforth prevail in Dixie and that our people are entitled to both places and consideration at our national convention as well as the right to participate in the councils of our nation."

Economic conditions, as is usually the case in all nationwide disasters have hit the south harder than any other section of the country and her people are not thinking in terms of politics. Hence an active campaign will not be on in all probability, earlier than December."

Efforts of Mann Problematical.

Just how far Colonel Mann can get in an effort to rouse southern republicans against the established order of things and the administration is problematical. He is from Tennessee and has had many friends in the south. However, a republican administration has always been stronger politically in the southern states than its opposition. Without a considerable amount of money, it would be difficult, it was said today, to build up an organization in the south in opposition to the regular republican organization.

At present federal patronage in three southern states, Florida, Georgia and South Carolina, is being handled in large part through selected committees outside of the administration. In those states there has been much resentment on the part of the leaders of the organizations at the attitude taken by the administration. However, the administration leaders are confident that when the showdown comes the delegations from those states will not be opposed to the renomination of Mr. Hoover.

In the rest of the southern and border states the regular organization is functioning in connection with patronage as well as in other matters. Mr. Lucas said today he had spent February in the south and had found the people there friendly to Mr. Hoover.

The suggestion that former President Coolidge would permit himself to be drawn into the picture as the candidate next year was not taken very seriously by republican leaders here.

Liquid Sugar Case Before U. S. Court

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(UP)—A loophole in the Hawley-Smoot tariff law, involving the sugar in your coffee and millions of dollars in government revenue, is before the federal courts, on its way to the supreme court or a final ruling.

The case is the liquid sugar customs case, now before United States Customs Judge W. J. Tilton, brother of the house republican leader from Cincinnati, sitting at Savannah, Ga. After evidence was submitted Friday, the case was adjourned until April 27, when it will resume in New York city.

A large part of the $130,000,000 annual customs received by the government on sugar imports is levied, as the importers, the Savannah Sugar Refining Corporation, in this case contend that liquid sugar is subject, not to the duty of 1.7125 cents a pound provided for sugar under paragraph 601 of the tariff law, but as "edible molasses,"—one-fourth of a cent a pound.

TWO MEN AND WOMAN ARRESTED AS ROBBERS

HOUSTON, March 29.—(AP)—Two men and a woman, arrested here as robbery suspects and disarmed of three pistols, were being questioned Sunday while Nashville, Tenn., authorities were putting in a claim for their custody.

Chief of Detectives Elkins Lewis, of Nashville, telegraphed Houston police that he held state warrants, charging highway robbery, for two men whose names coincide with those given by the trio, who admitted they had lived in Nashville.

The two men told officers they were brothers, and the woman claimed to be the wife of one of them. They are scheduled to be viewed tomorrow by victims of recent holdups here.

U. S. Correspondent at Moscow Defends Morals Under Soviet

PAWTUCKET, R. I., March 29.—(UP)—A controversy between a local clergyman, who has just visited Russia, and a professor of Brown University as to whether or not the red regime in Russia had left the people morally bankrupt, led Stanley Black, manager of the Times, to write Eugene Lyons, United Press staff correspondent at Moscow, for information.

The clergyman maintained that communist rule has morally bankrupted the nation, while the professor declared that the free love propaganda about Russia is largely mythical.

Here is the excerpt from Black's letter to Lyons requesting information:

"A Pawtucket clergyman, who visited Russia this summer, returned with the story of the moral bankruptcy of the soviet people, asserting that family life has been broken down by the red regime. His statement was combated a few days ago by a Brown University professor, who maintained that the free love propaganda about Russia is largely mythical and overemphasized. The religious angle also interests the people of this territory greatly. Could you write me your impressions of the situation?"

To which Lyons, who has been stationed at Moscow for 36 months, replied:

"Dear Mr. Black:

"I wish I could answer your question about morals and family life in the new Russia in terms of yes-and-no. The Russian scene is a dynamic one, with much of the old order still holding along and a good deal of the new one still sketchy. I am sure that both clergyman and your professor are equally honest and intelligent. They have merely seen different things and judged them differently."

"The Russian revolution has injected a lot of brand-new ideas about family relations and morality into human thought. It is too early to say what those ideas will do to Russia and to the rest of the world."

Not to Blame.

"Much of what people find in soviet Russia and blame upon the bolsheviks is no more the fault of the bolsheviks than of your clergyman. A revolution is not a polite parlor game. This one, tore a great nation out of centuries-old grooves. That sort of upheaval cannot be confined to politics and economics. It upsets personal lives and human relationships. Moreover it was preceded by a world war which bled Russia white; it was followed by a civil war, by famine, by efforts at reconstruction against the combined hostility of the outside world. The social unrest and confusion knocked the props from everyday morality. There were excesses. To a lesser extent there still are. But it would not be fair to blame them upon the bolsheviks. It was merely the expression of troubled times, and the same thing happened in Germany in the first years after the war."

"Soviet laws about family relationships are based upon a few simple principles. First, that no man or woman may force another to live with him or her as man or wife; in other words, either party to a marriage may dissolve it at will without consulting the other. Second, that children are not punishable for the sins of their parents, wherefore there is no such thing as illegitimacy, infants born in wedlock or out of it being equally entitled to the affection of both their parents. Third, absolute equality for men and women in all human relationships. Fourth, full responsibility by fathers and mothers for their offspring, whether in free love, marriage or after divorce."

"Easy Divorce."

"Statistics show a great increase in divorces as compared with pre-war Russia. There is no way of reckoning how much of this is due to 'easy divorces' and how much to the effects of social upheaval. The significant fact is that divorces are going down rather than up as bolsheviks takes a firmer hold."

"My personal impression is that Ly had large morals and family life here are approximately what they are in the rest of the world. The mass of the population, particularly the workers and the peasants, maintain their families as before. The new freedom has doubtless gone to the heads of some young people. But the overwhelming majority lives as of old. Among the Russian families of my personal acquaintance the family life is as close, as intimate, as any you can find at home."

"The outside world has heard so much about the divorce laws, the rights to free love, and birth control that it has a distorted idea of the communist attitude toward morals. I have had a few Americans tell me after extended residence in Moscow that they found its morals more severe than in New York or Berlin or Paris. If anything the leaders of the soviet regime are 'Puritans' in their attitude toward life. Amusement for its own sake has something disreputable about it here and there are a few big economic jobs. The theater and movies are always 'preaching' at the people—outsiders call this 'propaganda' but the differenters of the soviet party are frequently expelled in disgrace because their personal lives are not up to the mark. Such expulsions don't often take place in our own republican or democratic parties."

"The official morality of the kremlin is for clean love, loyalty to one's life partner, abstention from liquor and even from cigarettes."

Spartan Ideal.

"The bolshevik ideal of human conduct is Spartan. Whatever weakens the body or dissipates time is considered 'socially unhealthy,' which is another way of saying immoral. The virtue of virtues, exalted every day in a thousand ways, is duty to the cause."

"From time to time communist youth organizations draw up codes of conduct. I have in mind one that was adopted by the boys and girls in a Moscow factory recently. There is a good deal in it about fighting the 'class enemy.' But aside from that it all sounds like a Y. M. C. A. manual."

It calls for loyalty to one man or woman, or abstention from intoxicants, for habits of health and cleanliness, for devotion to the country and readiness to defend it against enemies."

"The new soviet ideas have affected different people in different ways. But the great mass adheres to the age-old moralities. The atheists give different reasons for these moralities than a clergyman would. Where the latter would say simply that such-and-such a thing is a 'sin,' a soviet atheist will say that it is 'socially harmful.' But the soviet regime knows as do all others that immorality weakens a people."

"In their personal lives the communists who rule this land are supposed to serve as examples to the non-communists. Of the outstanding figures in the soviet regime one can say definitely that they are better behaved than almost any set of dominant personalities in other countries. The burden of work and worry which they carry in leading this extraordinary social, political and economic experiment leaves them no margin or desire for personal adventure or indulgence."

PALM SUNDAY MEANING GIVEN BY DR. McELVEEN

The Rev. Dr. W. T. McElveen, in his sermon to the United Congregational church on Sunday morning, said that all the great moral leaders had Palm Sundays in their lives, when they declared that the contentment of contemporaries would become the praise of posterity. He said:

"Today is Palm Sunday, the anniversary of the triumphal entry of Jesus into the capital city of Jerusalem. That ostentatious parade was unlike anything that Jesus ever did before. He staged a pageant to spectacularly prophesy that His cause would win and that eventually He would be the universal Lord of all. Paul, who was scorned and persecuted, beaten and imprisoned, had many a Palm Sunday in his life by which he assured himself that virtue was stronger than vice, and that Christianity would eventually be a great success. Spite of its braggart effrontery, sin is not as powerful as goodness. Every evil is like Achilles; however vigorous it may seem, it has a vulnerable heel."

INDIAN BUREAU FEELS 'SHAKEUP'

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(AP)—Reorganization of the Indian office, designed to conquer many admitted evils which have attended the government's guardianship of its wards, was announced today by Commissioner Rhoads and Assistant Commissioner Scattergood.

Changes in the bureau, effective immediately, will place increased responsibility on new officials, selected for their professional equipment and knowledge of Indian problems, and will give them wide executive power. For the first time, problems of human relations will be handled separately from those involving administration of property.

The program climaxes the corrective process Rhoads and Scattergood began upon taking office in 1928. Since that year congress has passed Indian appropriations; civil service qualifications and salaries for the field personnel of 5,000 have been raised; an extensive construction has been undertaken to correct bad conditions at a number of Indian schools and hospitals; food allowances for children in the boarding schools have been increased from 11 to 37 cents a day and the heavy labor previously done by school children has been taken over by them.

The commissioners have replaced 24 out of the 110 superintendents of reservations and institutions. Of the new men, 15 were promoted within the Indian service and nine were taken from outside.

FAIRBANKS HUNTS DAILY IN JUNGLES

COOCH BEHAR, India, March 29.—(AP)—Douglas Fairbanks, American film star who is visiting Her Highness Maharaja Sahib, regent of the state of Cooch Behar, has forsaken everyday life for the jungles, where he spends his days hunting tigers, panthers and leopards.

In the evening the actor entertains his hosts, who administer this tiny state in the Bengal district in behalf of the British crown, with accounts of life in America and tells about his moving picture experiences.

Today their "Bagdad," as the Indians have nicknamed Fairbanks, bagged one of the biggest panthers seen in this vicinity in recent years. He will take the skin home as a trophy for his wife, Mary Pickford.

Mr. Fuller's address was directed largely toward the principles of the teaching profession and the vital connections between education and the labor movement.

What He Gets.

He gets a lot of riding on a bullet-proof limousine with plate glass an inch thick.

He enjoys the thrill of leaving hotels always through side exits or back doors.

He has mastered the technique of sitting always out of range of any one of the thousands of sniping rifles that are pointed only at the rooms that he inhabits.

He knows that it is inaccessible to pot smokers and snipers.

He spends much of his time in Italy, through the hotels or in sprawling estates in Sicily.

When he catches a glimpse of the great outdoors he usually sees the sea and the hills of the surrounding streets and suburbs in the world, where only people live who don't know about the sunny outer world or who are afraid of it.

He enjoys the privilege of associating exclusively with the charming members of his entourage, always talking to them as he would like to occasionally to that with "non-professionals."

The variety of amusements and freedom of his millions makes possible for other millionaires is impossible for him; his duty to his "organization" mustn't be neglected, or he would lose his position.

His movement is too dangerous a luxury for Capone.

Premier Mussolini has let it be known that he will let the whim to return to live the life of Italy in Italy, he will not be welcome.

Will Not Run.

But it is not likely that Capone will ever run away. He has as strong a sense of technique as a corporation lawyer. He understands that the law is his ally, and he knows that the law will help as well as hinder a "rising young real estate man," as his lawyers call him.

He will never run away from the law; nor will he ever, in all likelihood, run away from his onerous tasks and responsibilities, among his friends or his enemies, to matter how much he may want to relax and take things easy. His sense of technique is too strong for that.

He will negotiate as he negotiates his "merchandise" with business rivals but he will never run. Gradually, though, he will be able to enjoy his pleasures in Florida or other resorts.

The big boy is still under 40. I wonder what the actuary of a good insurance company would figure his life expectancy.

ROOSEVELT POWER IN 1928 SHOWN

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP)—Jesse Isidor Straus, merchant and democratic worker, declared today that a large majority of delegates and alternates to the 1928 national convention were in favor of the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidency next year.

Straus, assistant treasurer of the democratic national committee during the Hoover-Smith campaign, said he had polled the former delegates and alternates "as a democrat, confident of the party's brilliant success next year and interested in finding the sentiment . . . as to candidacies."

He said approximately 2,000 men and women were polled and that of 942 who replied 844 stated their preference. Of these, he added, 478 voted for the New York governor, 125 for former Governor Alfred E. Smith, 73 for Owen D. Young, 38 for Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, 35 for Newton D. Baker, of Ohio, 15 for former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, and the rest were scattered.

The only states sending no returns were Oregon, Wisconsin and Wyoming. New York state was not canvassed. California sent two replies, Virginia but one.

"Otherwise," the Straus report stated, "all the states were well represented."

Riot at Newspaper.

ZARAGOZA, Spain, March 29.—(AP)—Cpt. Ruiz Hernandez was injured today in an attempt to stop a riot in which a crowd stoned the office of the newspaper El Noticiero. Several members of the crowd, who demanded amnesty for political prisoners, were arrested.

Government Costs Now Average $105.20 to Each Person in Nation

NEW YORK, March 29.—(UP)—Government expenditures, state, local and national, have expanded twice as fast as the national income in the last 15 years, and now average $105.20 for each man, woman, and child in the United States.

These facts were disclosed tonight by the national industrial conference board in its eighth annual report on the cost of government.

The survey was based on complete statistics for the fiscal year 1928, showing total expenditures by all United States governmental agencies of $12,000,000,000. In 1913 the comparable figure was only $2,919,000,000.

This increase, of more than triple, was held by the board to be a matter of "serious concern." Greater vigilance by taxpayers against expenditure of their money was recommended.

In computing national income, the board found that the 1928 figure was an increase of 135 per cent over the 1913 income. $31,000,000,000 as compared with $23,400,000,000 in 1913. Federal expenditures made up a little less than one-third of the total governmental expenditures. The national government's expenditures have been mounting rapidly in recent years, the board said, national expenditures in 1928 were 10.7 per cent over 1927, and 1930 showed an increase of 6 per cent over 1929.

State governments in 1928 got 14.1-2 per cent of the total, and spent $581,000,000, nearly 32 per cent of their money, for highways. Education was the second largest item of state expense.

Local governments as usual got the lion's share of the taxes, 54 per cent in 1928, a total of $6,813,000,000. Increased expenditures for education, highways, and debt service were the principal factors in the increased cost of local government, the board said.

POLITICAL PARADES MARK SPANISH SUNDAY

MADRID, March 29.—(AP)—While Spain observed Palm Sunday with special services today, political parties took advantage of the holiday to stage a series of municipal electoral propaganda meetings throughout the country. Meetings of the coalition republican socialist forces petitioned the government to free all political prisoners.

In several cities thousands of persons paraded in protests to the imprisonment. The demonstrations were generally peaceful and the marchers were not molested by police.

Lack of Trained Workers Is Soviet Stumbling Block

Inadequate Transportation Equipment Likewise Hinders Success of Five-Year Plan.

A stumbling block in the path of the Russian proletarian giant striving towards completion of the famous five-year plan, is the unreliability of native technical workers and the shortage of scientific experts. Another is the ill-equipped transportation. Eugene Lyons, Moscow correspondent of the United Press, explains in the following article, the fourth of a series, the difficulties that beset the soviet regime in its relentless pushing of its prescribed scheme. Mr. Lyons is visiting in America.

BY EUGENE LYONS.

NEW YORK, March 25.—(UP)—When Joseph Stalin spoke recently at a conference of businessmen and industrialists, he waved aside the fact that the two years of operation under the five-year plan gave the union an aggregate production of 30 1-2 billion rubles—a billion more than the plan called for. Nor did he mention the fact that 6,500,000 peasant farms had been merged into collectives.

Instead, Stalin emphasized the failure of Russia to attain the 32 per cent production growth planned for 1930, and riveted attention to the difficulties to be overcome this year, which are many and enormous. The growth for 1931 has been charted at 45 per cent.

In soviet parlance, the difficulties are called "narrow places." The term evokes an image of a nation striding forward with giant steps into its future but obliged to negotiate narrow, dangerous passages.

Poor Human Material.

Narrowness of these is the shortage of qualified human material for the colossal job on hand. Unavoidably the bolsheviks depend on the carrying out of plans, and in much of the primary planning as well, upon non-bolshevik specialists. The recent trials of Professor Leonid Ramzin and others demonstrated clearly how unreliable are many of the specialists. Sabotage of the costliest kind was conducted and doubtless is still operative throughout the soviet apparatus, not excepting the very highest councils and commissions.

Even aside from the question of their loyalty, the available mechanical leadership is too small and inexperienced. Thousands of skilled foreigners, Germans and Americans, have been imported to cover the shortage. Technical schools are working in several shifts to turn out as many young technicians as possible. They emerge half-baked and inefficient, but at least loyal and ardent.

Stalin touched the sorest spot in the soviet economic anatomy when he called upon the 2,000,000 communists and 3,000,000 communist youths to "take possession of the technique, economy and finance of factories, plants and mines." To the end of the five-year term the personnel problem will interfere seriously with the work ahead.

The problem, in fact, is larger than that of technical leadership. It extends to the whole millionfold body of old and new workers, unaccustomed to machine labor, to the speed and pressure of modern mass production. Industry in 1930 drew 700,000 new workers; about 2,000,000 more will be put to work this year, hundreds of thousands of them women. This is absolutely green proletarian material, fresh from farm and kitchen, and it will inevitably do much fumbling before it learns its job.

Transportation Weak.

Another "narrow place" is transportation. Last year freight shipments aggregated 235,000,000 tons, exceeding by one-quarter the total expected for the end of the five-year plan. This premature completion of the plan is by no means a blessing. The transportation net has not grown fast enough to handle such loads. This year the burden will mount to 330,000,000 tons. The number of passengers will be four times larger than before the war, although the available number of passenger cars is no larger.

As a result, the transportation system is staggering. Catastrophes are an everyday occurrence. Daily loadings are from 25 to 35 per cent lower than necessary. Administrative and labor discipline is at a low ebb on all railroads, despite harsh punitive measures.

An immediate insufficiency of coal, peat and other fuel has arisen in the past six months.

The list of obstacles can easily be lengthened. Soviet leaders do not play ostrich with them. Those frightened to the point of demanding a slackening pace are cast into the political limbo.

More decisive than all the narrow places is the morale of the population—how long it can or will maintain its present pace. It is admittedly underfed and overworked, regimented into a sort of army of labor, disposed of as the government thinks desirable for the national good. Prophecy in this domain has proved trustworthy. The Russian people have greater staying powers than anyone suspected.

Supposed 'Dean' Of U. S. Workers Beaten by Year

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(AP)—Edward Augustine Savoy, state department messenger extraordinary, has lost his place as the dean of active government workers.

The old negro has been on Uncle Sam's payroll almost 62 years and unofficially held the championship.

Today, however, Charles B. Davis, messenger for the army chief of staff who works just around a corridor corner from Eddie in the state-war-navy building, modestly admitted he had been in service for 63 years.

The records bore him out. Eddie seemed flabbergasted when he heard the news. He sat down at his desk after commenting he had seen and talked with Davis almost every day for years.

"I knew he had been here a long time," he said, his accent southern but showing the influence of the precise enunciation of New England diplomat. "But I didn't know he'd been here that long."

"Not that I doubt it," he added diplomatically, after a pause.

Both men are well past the retirement age but have been permitted to continue active work.

Davis, a native of Peru, Ind., was when he began drawing government pay on April 14, 1868. Andrew Jackson was president and Edwin Stanton secretary of war.

"I'm good for quite a few years yet, I think," he said.

"Well, I declare," commented Eddie on this statement. "How old is that man. Seventy-two? Oh, well, I'm seventy-six."

SUSPECTED KILLERS QUIZZED BY TROOPERS

Evidence To Convict Slayer of State Policeman Is Sought.

McALESTER, Okla., March 29.—(AP)—Four hungry state troopers from New York arrived here today and began assembling evidence by which they expect to send to the electric chair two youthful outlaws for the slaying of a fellow officer.

The officers questioned Stanley Chero, in the state penitentiary hospital ward suffering from a gunshot wound, and William Schemmiller, in his jail cell, without drawing from either admission of firing the shot that killed State Trooper John E. Frey March 18.

Tonight it was doubtful whether Chero would live to face trial. While attending physicians told the troopers that his condition so far was satisfactory, the crisis from a serious thigh wound is expected to be reached tomorrow. He developed a high fever today, but still was conscious.

Soviet was wounded when he attempted to escape after McAlester police had arrested the two here, found asleep in an automobile, they had stolen in Ohio. Local police said that soon after his arrest, Chero admitted shooting Trooper Frey, but later changed his story—and since each prisoner has denied the actual killing.

Glover Peeved As Workers Sail On Foreign Ships

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(AP)—Assistant Postmaster-General Glover was thoroughly peeved Friday.

He had just learned that two congressmen whom he described as "great friends of the American merchant marine on the floors of congress" had sailed off for summer vacations on a foreign ship.

Furthermore, a group of several hundred postmasters and their wives, he found, had made plans for a holiday in Europe via foreign ship.

And to cap it all, the organizers of a patriotic children's pilgrimage also had booked reservations for their charges aboard a foreign vessel.

A large part of Mr. Glover's job is to stimulate the upbuilding of the American merchant marine.

The congressmen, whom he wouldn't name, had gone already and he could do nothing about that.

But he got hold of the postmasters and persuaded them to travel under the Stars and Stripes. Then he issued a statement pleading with vacationers to use American boats.

"After all," he said, "we have some swell ships ourselves. It is only proper patriotism to patronize the American merchant marine on which the government spends millions of dollars in mail contracts and loans which make building these ships possible."

ON GUARD IN SOUTH AMERICA.

The importance at this time for American business interests to protect their "stake" in South America is discussed by Ralph L. Woods, widely known writer on international economics, in a recent article in the Magazine of Wall Street.

The visit of the Prince of Wales and his brother to Latin America as "commissioners extraordinary of empire trade" is seen by this writer as possessing the possibility of a serious lessening in the trade between the two Americas. "If the Prince of Wales visits India or Africa," he writes, "it is interesting . . . but when he visits South America it makes our leaders of finance and industry stir rather uneasily in their well upholstered chairs."

No section of the country should be more keenly interested in the threat of diminished trade with the nations to the south of us than the South Atlantic and Gulf states. They form the natural gateway to the great manufacturing centers of the north and east, and stand to receive the greatest benefits of any part of the country in the event American business achieves a dominant influence in the markets of South America.

With the south fast developing as an industrial center, no stone should be left unturned by our public and business leaders to increase the warmth of the personal relations, and the extent of the trade, with our fellow Americans.

Difference in language, wide divergence in customs and the conflict in temperament which all too often arises between those of Latin and Anglo-Saxon descent, makes this a none too easy accomplishment.

That these handicaps can be overcome, however, has been amply demonstrated in the case of the people of Cuba. Up to the passage of the sugar tariff last year, the United States had no better foreign customer per capita than the island republic—and to the extensive business relations the residents of Cuba added a cordial esteem for the people of America as fellow citizens of the new world.

With proper "speeding up" of efforts by our business leaders to the end of not only holding, but increasing the scope of our commercial relations with the various countries of South America, the announced British drive for increased trade with these nations, the first step in which is the visit now being made by the two royal princes, should not retard our own progress in the countries to the south of us.

But if our exporters and financiers sit idly by without taking steps to counteract the effect of the visit of these royal ambassadors of trade, they can expect to see nullified much of the advantage gained by our educational campaigns of the past decade.

In outlining the importance and extent of our commercial and financial relations with South American nations, Mr. Woods says:

Although a little more than half of our Latin American investments are in Cuba, Mexico, the West Indies and Central America, the South American nations are of greater importance to the United States at this time because of their richer and less exploited natural resources and because of the more attractive possibilities they offer as an expanding market for our surplus of finished goods and profitable investment of more of our dollars.

Taking both our direct and indirect investments into consideration, one-half billion dollars, more than four times the total just prior to the World War.

That is surely a "stake" worth going the limit to hold and to increase.

Lindbergh flies a new plane at the rate of four miles per minute on the day Byrd announces a new hop over the north pole. If these two keep up they will break records as record-breakers.

The cherry trees at Washington, a gift of good fellowship from Japan some years ago, are again about to beautify the national capital with their lovely blooms. And yet a flingo still sticks his head up every now and then.

THE MORRIS BROWN FUND.

Any movement which tends to raise the standard of citizenship deserves, and usually receives, the support of the community. A campaign of this type is now in progress in Atlanta, with the object of enabling Morris Brown University to acquire an adequate tract of land and add to its physical plant. This information is contained in a news-story in another page, and the statement is made that the amount to be raised is $100,000.

Of interest is the announcement by Bishop Wm. A. Fountain, chairman of the board of trustees of Morris Brown College, that the Rockefeller Foundation general board has pledged $41,000; but of even greater interest is the fact that for 50 years the A. M. E. churches of Georgia have supported the college without the aid of any philanthropy or foundation. Morris Brown, as its president aptly says, has evoked an expression of self-help from the negroes of Atlanta and Georgia.

Surely the spirit back of Morris Brown deserves the highest praise, and the men at its head have shown an unusual capacity for making very little money produce excellent results. Founded 50 years ago by ministers of the African Methodist Episcopal church of Georgia for industrial, high and Christian training of the youth of the group, it has achieved its aims and ambitions in a fashion scarcely less than remarkable, when its resources are considered. It is small wonder that Dr. W. W. Alexander should refer to Morris Brown as a college which "is educating a race to educate itself."

In order to obtain the $41,000 offered by the general board of the Rockefeller Foundation, it is necessary that Morris Brown clear itself of the $62,000 mortgage and current debts and raise $50,000 for operating expenses for 1931. This means that a total of $112,000 must be obtained by the college in 1931.

This effort on the part of Bishop Fountain and his associates to enlarge the physical plant of Morris Brown, and thereby increase its usefulness by improving its educational facilities, is to be heartily commended. It should receive the support of white as well as black, for what will help the negro will be of benefit to the community and the state. Every move by any race to better itself—to educate itself—to build character and inculcate the spirit of self-help—is an excellent thing for its neighbors as well as its own members.

DIXIE'S NEW SPOKESMAN.

Inauguration a week ago tonight of the Dixie network of the Columbia Broadcasting system was something more than a novelty. It was, rather, a new voice, a strengthened vocal instrumentality for the land below Mason's and Dixon's Line. For regardless of the intent and purpose underlying this new radio hook-up, the fact remains that, in effect, it will prove a valuable and undeniable factor in preserving southern tradition and reviving waning memory of the south of the past.

Be it conceived in the name of commerce, or its aim directed at gain, which is reasonable to men, the new Dixie network will, inexorably, find its outlet in the rivulets of ether that flow to the sea of listeners beyond the land of cotton. And, though this new association of purely southern stations comes as a unique arrangement, its uniqueness will be overshadowed by the practical benefits which it will bring to the south.

At present eleven stations form the basic network of the new chain. Eleven energized voices that, simultaneously, carry the songs of Dixie, the mellifluous softness of the southern voice, the mannerisms and, even, idiosyncrasies of the south and southerners, to ears beyond; to ears and minds which, in time past, knew only through too few volumes, that somewhere south lay Dixie, a land not merely of pot-luker and cornpone but of charm and tradition, as well. Those eleven stations, with their kilowatt-power combined, put the Dixie network on a par with the nation's most powerful station. And that is only the basis, the beginning. Ultimately 21 stations will at the same split-second send out their message of Dixie.

That Charlotte and not Atlanta has been selected as the "key" city does not matter. It is something that belongs to the south. The new network is a chain of power that gives to the south something that, as yet, perhaps, the south does not realize. And the Columbia Broadcasting system is to be congratulated in the perspicacity which enabled them to see the possibilities of such a hook-up.

Those "American sources" charged with supplying arms and money to the Sandino insurgents are morally responsible for the deaths of every United States marine in Nicaragua, and should be treated accordingly.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

The End's In Sight.

Some psychic experts who have been crawling in and out of the Pyramid of Cheops measuring every inch of floor in the maze of chambers and corridors, now come out with the news that the old Egyptians who put up the building intended to convey a message to posterity. Better yet, the psychic experts after mentioned have deciphered the message. It says that the world is to come to an end in 1936, that is to say there is to be an immense upheaval which will sweep away all our accepted notions of economy and morality and then we are set for a period of uninterrupted peace and happiness for mankind that will never end.

By measuring the floors carefully, the experts, they arrived at the exact date of the outbreak of the World War. The pyramid, it is of course, the key to the secrets of the future, and the scale on which they worked on antiquity was an inch for every year up to the great step, and one inch for each month after that point. On the basis of these calculations they have worked out a date for the exodus of the Hebrews from Egypt, the rise of the Roman Empire, the flight of Mohammed from Mecca, and so on. At the risk of being considered hangers of disaster, the international psychic community believe that they are doing a good deed, and tell the world what is in store that is to say revolutions, anarchy and famines for Europe and Asia up till 1936.

The symbolism makes it clear, they say, that the New Testament is the most likely cause of the world upheaval which stands before our doors. Let no man lose heart, however, worse predictions have been made, and they have fished out like crackers. Tens of thousands of people sold all they had, hundreds died of fright, when some of the more respectable savants of the time prophesied the end of the world for the year 1000. We got along another 931 years since, and somehow we'll pull through this time.

"Wait for the Wagon."

The Transylvanian paper, "Brassol Lant," describes the designing of the first Transylvanian paper for tracing the heirs to unclaimed fortunes. This company, which has just been started in Bucharest, is called "Transylvanian Research Company, Ltd.," and the director has stated to a journalist the first effort of the company will be to trace the heirs to several hundred American fortunes. One of these, the $140,000,000 Horowitz inheritance has lain in limbo since 1888, as the heirs of the heirs could provide a sufficient title to it.

The president of the Vienna Horowitz who claims to be a direct descendant of a bishop who that gentleman has been engaged in reconstructing a family tree. According to his researches, Bishop Horowitz was a Jewish boy, who emigrated from Pressburg about the year 1830. As the bishop had no children his fortune should fall to his brother Charles, whose direct descendant, the president of the Vienna Horowitz claims to be, and to his two sisters, whose married names were respectively Oberbarr and Steinhart, but of whose descendants all trace has been lost. The president of the Vienna Horowitz, the Bernstein fortune of $100,000,000 which exists in New York—or so it is said in Budapest.

Rain Lessens Peril Of Water Shortage

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP)—New York got a great big drink of water over the weekend. It was big enough—17,000,000,000 gallons of water, according to the estimated. Rain started yesterday noon and continued until this morning over the 975 square miles of the New York State.

The precipitation, although postponing a critical shortage, did not eliminate the danger.

CRAWFORD LONG UNVEILING TODAY

Discoverer of Ether To Be Honored at Memorial Hospital.

Memory of one of Georgia's immor-tals, Dr. Crawford W. Long, who, through his discovery of ether as an anesthetic, proved one of man's greatest benefactors, will be honored at 2 o'clock this afternoon when a medallion struck with his likeness will be unveiled at the recently-chartered Crawford W. Long Memorial hospital, formerly the Davis-Fischer sanatorium.

Dedication ceremonies will include the unveiling of tablets to the late Dr. Joseph Jacobs, through whose untiring efforts recognition finally was accorded Dr. Long, and to the late Dr. E. C. Davis, one of the founders of Davis-Fischer sanatorium. Among those who will take part in the exercises are Governor L. G. Hardman, Chief Justice Richard B. Russell,
Mayor James L. Key, Dr. G. Y.
Moore, president of the Georgia Medical Association, and Dr. T. C. Davison, president of the Fulton County Medical Society.

Dr. Frank K. Boland, an associate of Dr. Davis in the Emory overseas unit, commanding officer and chief of the surgical service of the base hospital at Blais, France, during the war, will serve as master of ceremonies. Dr. Boland likewise was a lifelong friend of Dr. Jacobs.

Rabbi David Marx will deliver the principal eulogy, while officials mentioned in the foregoing will make brief talks. Unveiling of the Long medallion will be by two of Dr. Long's daughters, Miss Emma Long and Mrs.
Eugenia Long Harper. The tablet to Dr. Jacobs will be unveiled by a grandson, Sinclair Jacobs, Jr., while that in memory of Dr. Davis will be unveiled by his youngest daughter,
the Misses Sarah Fischer Davis and Theodore Lamar Davis.

Innovation will be by the Rev.
Richard Orme Flinn. Brief remarks will be made by Mrs. A. R. Colcord, regent, representing Joseph Habersham
chapter, D. A. R.; Mrs. Bun
Wylie, state regent, representing D.
A. R. of Georgia; Mrs. John A. Perdue, representing state members, U.
D. C.; Dr. E. G. Ballenger, representing Emory unit, base hospital 42,
A. E. F., 1918-1919, and Dr. G. Y.
Moore, president Georgia Medical Association.

Pledges of loyalty by two registered nurses, Miss Caroline Sutton, R.
N., superintendent, and Miss Alice Thompson, R. N., president of the Davis-Fischer Sanatorium Alumni Association, will follow.

Specialty honored guests attending the ceremony will be Dr. J. G. Earnest, Dr. Robert G. Stephens, and Judge Alexander W. Stephens, the latter two grand-nephews of Alexander W. Stephens, who will be introduced by Dr. Boland.

A charter to operate the Crawford
W. Long Memorial hospital was obtained some months ago upon application of Governor Hardman, acting as a member of the medical profession; Dr. Allen H. Bunce, Dr. E. G.
Ballenger, Dr. Frank K. Boland, Dr.
O. P. Elder, Dr. E. C. Davis and Dr.
L. C. Fischer. Under the new name
the institution aims to function efficiently to the benefit of that class of citizens needing hospitalization who can afford to pay only moderate fees.

Davis-Fischer sanatorium began operating on Crew street in 1908 with a 20-bed capacity. In 1912 the present building on Linden street was completed and equipped with 57 beds.
In 1923 the annex was erected, giving a total bed capacity of 285, and accommodations for 70 nurses.

HOOVER BACK HOME AFTER OCEAN VOYAGE

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(AP)—
President Hoover tonight returned to Washington after an 11-day cruise to Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

In the White House again after his first vacation trip in a year, the chief executive looked back upon his ocean voyage as a pleasure from the start and ahead to tasks that must be done before he can rest again.

Tomorrow morning he planned to clear his desk of the correspondence that accumulated during his absence, then to turn to the preparation of a series of addresses to be given soon.

At intervals as the battleship Arizona, which reached Old Point Comfort, Va., early this afternoon, was to congratulate Lieutenant Commander Henry M. Kieffer on his able handling of the destroyer DuPont, which served as escort for the Arizona during much of the trip.

Acting for the president, Lawrence Richey, one of his secretaries, presented autographed pictures of Mr.

Hoover to Captain Charles S. Freeman, of the Arizona, and to her senior and junior officers.

Newspaper correspondents who made the trip invited the Arizona's officers to a dinner to be given soon in Washington in reciprocation for courtesies extended them during the voyage.

President Hoover will not visit his Virginia camp this Saturday but expected to make the trip the Saturday following.

Warm Weather On Way South, Forecast Says

The long-heralded last fling of Old Man Winter at Atlanta seemed to have been somewhat in order Sunday,
but weather predictions from Washington are to the effect that today will dawn bright and fair and that with the rising of the sun the temperature will continue to slide upward, hitting 50 degrees or better and never getting below 38.

Today will be cloudy, however,
and probably will be followed by rain, according to the Washington advises. Moderate north winds, shift-

DRYS RENEW ATTACKS ON LIQUOR PROPOSALS

Dual Protests Made Against Plans For Government Sale.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(AP)—
A dual attack upon suggestions the federal government go into the liquor business' or undertake a system of liquor control, emanated today from leading organizations in the dry camp.

The Methodist Episcopal board of temperance, in its weekly clip-sheet, gave reasons it believed the American people "could not accept" a liquor control system.

The system proposed by Colonel
Henry W. Anderson, of Richmond, Va., in his addenda to the Wickersham report, was patterned in part upon the Bratt system. The board did not mention either Anderson or the law enforcement commission's report.

At the same time F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, issued a statement quoting the answers given by two Pittsburgh business and professional men to a letter from Pierre S. du Pont, a director of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

Marcus W. Achson, Jr., attorney, was quoted as contending the American people would never consent "to their government's going into the liquor business." He asserted it was "outside practical politics," and would not lead to temperance.

R. A. Shipley, vice president of the National Fire Proofing Company, was quoted as saying prohibition had brought financial comfort to his firm's employees in the place of near poverty.
Both men were listed as leaders of the Anti-Saloon League's new national education program.

Among the points enumerated against the Bratt system were that it was based upon a false "theory of alcoholic beverages," that it had increased drinking among Sweden's youth; that it was too paternalistic and that since the holding of a liquor license was based upon good behavior
the right to drink had become a "credential of respectability."

"The Bratt system has had only a limited trial in 120 of the 2,400 districts of Sweden," the board said.
"Under the local option privilege granted by the law of 1885, more than 2,300 of Sweden's districts are dry."

Epidemic Threatens Remote Alaskan City

POINT BARROW, Alaska, March 29.—(AP)—With the supply of antitoxin dwindling fast and new cases developing both here and at inland points, the diphtheria epidemic raging here for almost a month, again held this little village in a grip of fear today. It was believed several days ago
the disease had been controlled.

The only hospital is overcrowded and quarantined houses are full of patients. A vacant house is being prepared to accommodate those showing improvement in their condition. All available beds and bedding are in use and the house floor will be covered with reindeer skins and other furs to accommodate the patients. Miss Flo-sie George Young, Eskimo school teacher and a student nurse, will be placed in charge.

ing to east, also will be on the menu
for today and Tuesday.
In the 24-hour period ending at 7
a. m. Sunday the thermometer dropped 21 degrees, from 58 to 37. The low temperature in Georgia, however,
brought no frost because of accompanying wind and clouds. Fruit growers in Georgia were not expected to suffer from any damage to their crops.

The new PONTIAC

with all its fine-car features costs only a little more than the lowest-priced cars

Two groups of motorists will be especially interested in the new Pontiac—those who want more quality than they have been getting at a similar price, and those who find that Pontiac offers the quality they have known, yet saves them money. They all see in Pontiac a sound investment—low in first cost and operating cost—a motor car in whose ownership they may well take pride.

BODIES BY FISHER—new in modish design, roomy comfort and safety. Genuine mohair or whipcord upholstery contributes a lasting atmosphere of good taste. Seat cushions are pleasingly deep and form-fitting. Appointments fully express the high ideals of Fisher craftsmanship.

CHASSIS CUSHIONED WITH RUBBER AT 41 POINTS—Pads of rubber between axles and springs, motor and frame—at 41 points altogether—insure the riding ease you associate with fine cars. Road shocks are reduced . . . the car's steadiness on the road improved . . . its life prolonged. Rubber-cushioned shackles promote comfort, eliminate lubrication at 12 points.

NEW 60 H. P. MOTOR drives Pontiac with the ready, even flow of smooth power you appreciate when traffic calls for quick action, or an open road allows sustained speed.

INSULATION AGAINST HEAT, COLD, NOISE—a notable advance in tight construction that shuts out extreme temperatures, reduces traffic clamor and defies rain. Cowl and windshield posts are formed in a single piece—a leak-proof and rattle-free construction. Pontiac's bodies are of superior construction throughout.

NEW, LARGER BRAKES—with an instant, positive grip on all four wheels that gives you confidence under all driving conditions.

In addition, Pontiac has five wire wheels as standard equipment; inbuilt radiator screen; heavy single-bar bumpers; Lovejoy shock absorbers; and many other modern features.

Don't you want to see and drive this low-priced, quality car? A demonstration will be arranged at your convenience.

"Refrigeration Must Be Constant!"

Food Spoilage Will Not Wait For Repairs!

Your refrigerator must not only be capable of producing low temperatures, but must maintain them. Thermostatically controlled mechanical refrigerating units produce fluctuating temperatures by switching on and off. A complete shut-down for repairs to such a unit causes loss of food through spoilage. In contrast to this uncertainty, ice refrigeration is dependable, safe and CONSTANT! Those who really know, prefer ice!

La Crosse

. . . refrigerators preserve foods NATURALLY, through ice refrigeration, maintaining the temperatures specified by the U. S. Bureau of Home Economics as being SAFE, below the danger point of 50 degrees.

SIX SUPERIOR FEATURES

1. Furnishes plenty of Crystal Clear (taste-free) Ice—that is wholesome and pure. Saves embarrassment from ice shortage.
2. Maintains the five different degrees of cold for various foods, as specified by the U. S. Bureau of Home Economics.
3. Maintains the correct amounts of moisture in the entire food compartment, thus keeping the natural flavor and freshness of foods. Does not dry out foods.
4. Provides a constant circulation of ICE cooled (purified) air through the food compartment, carrying away food odors, and preventing the interchange of food flavors.
5. Furnishes safer, more dependable refrigeration without danger, noise, repairs, or shut-downs.
6. Provides superior refrigeration at lowest initial and operating cost.

Many Would Change Shape of Their Noses
CHICAGO, March 29.—(UP)—Every month at least 10 people decide they are tired of their faces or ears or some part of their anatomy and write in to the Chicago Medical Society to find out where they can get the work done.

"Mostly it's noses," Dr. N. Davis, secretary of the society, reported. "Persons with long noses and pug noses write in asking who we recommend to do the rebuilding."

The only advice given by the society in the case of beauty seekers is to "get it done."

For three years, 1926-1929, King Faustin I reigned over 12,000 black subjects on an island 12 miles off the coast of French Guiana.

His crown was two feet high, made of shells, mirrors, feathers and bits of ribbon. His throne was carved porch chair. The fact that he wore shoes was one of the symbols of his authority. And everywhere he went he was saluted with a long roll on native drums, followed by three taps.

King Faustin undoubtedly will long be remembered by his subjects as the monarch who told them how to take care of their babies when they were sick. He used to get seeds from them to plant, too, and settle their native disputes.

"Most of their disputes," he said tonight, "arose from the fact there were more women on the island than men. I'd ask the man who had no man he wanted for his wife. Then I'd tell him sternly to take the one he wanted, but that I thought he was foolish. And that would help to soothe the injured feelings of the

Hollywood flirts who are demonstrating the facilities of a sightseeing tour of the world by air, left here in their 200-horsepower plane today for a 300-mile dash across the Bay of Bengal to Rangoon.

LEGISLATORS ATTEND HOMER HANCOCK RITES

Jackson County Representative Paid Final Tribute at Jefferson.

JEFFERSON, Ga., March 29.—A large group of legislators and business associates paid final tribute this afternoon to Homer Hancock, 50, member of the Georgia house of representatives and senator-elect, who killed himself in the offices of the Citizens Bank & Trust Company Saturday night.

The services were conducted from the home at 4:30 o'clock with the Rev. T. D. Johnston, pastor of the Jefferson Presbyterian church, officiating. Interment was in the Woodbine cemetery here.

The following members of the house, in addition to Governor-elect Richard B. Russell, Jr., served as a funeral escort:

E. J. Lord, of Jackson; J. B. G. Logan, of Banks; Boyd Sloan, of Hall; W. B. Lance, of Hall; J. A. Felker, of Walton; L. B. Johnson, of Franklin; W. B. Eiland, of Habersham; F. G. Edwards, of Stephens; Grady Holt, of Gwinnett; J. E. Wood, of Clark; George Bennett, of Clark, and Frank McKeely, of Gwinnett.

State senators acting as an honorary escort were: J. M. Garrison, of Wilkes; George L. Goode, thirty-third district; E. M. Williams, twenty-seventh district; W. V. Whaley, thirty-fifth district, and J. R. Barrett, thirty-second district.

Mr. Hancock was found dead about 8:30 o'clock Saturday night with a bullet wound through the head. A coroner's jury found that the legislator committed suicide for reasons unknown.

Mr. Hancock was one of the most prominent men in this section. He was vice president of the Citizens Bank & Trust Company and a member of the Presbyterian church and the city board of education. He had lived here practically all his life and long had taken an active part in enterprises for the development of the city and county. He was a member of the house for six years and had served as chairman of the committee on banks and banking. He would have taken his seat in June as a member of the state senate. Mr. Hancock was a brother-in-law of John P. Holder, former state highway commission chairman.

He is survived by his widow; three sons, Nat and Donald Hancock, University of Georgia students, and Cecil Hancock, and a daughter, Doris Hancock, of Jefferson.

DREWRY WILL ATTEND JOURNALISM MEETING

ATHENS, Ga., March 29.—Professor John E. Drewry, of the Henry W. Grady school of journalism, University of Georgia, will attend a meeting in Cleveland, Ohio, April 4 of teachers of journalism and newspaper editors, who are concerned with the establishment of uniform standards for professional education and practice in journalism.

Those in attendance will be members of a joint committee drawn from the American Society of Newspaper Editors, the National Editorial Association, the American Association of Teachers of Journalism, and the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journalism. The meeting has been called by Fred Fuller Shedd, editor of The Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. Mr. Shedd and officers of the other associations cooperated by naming the committee following a meeting of the teachers of journalism in Boston last December, at which the subject of better relations with the press and higher standards for education and practice in journalism was discussed. Members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, including Mr. Shedd, participated in this program, which was arranged by Professor Drewry as president of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism.

SAVANNAH PLANS AIR ROUTE OPENING

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 29.—Plans are practically complete for opening of air mail and passenger service here on April 1 by the Eastern Air Transport Line on a north and south route between Savannah, Jacksonville, Charleston and Florence, S. C.; Richmond, Va., and points north. Air mail officials, J. A. Meitz, superintendent of air mails at New York, and Fred Hiron, of the southern division with headquarters in Atlanta, have inspected the field and facilities and found them in good condition.

JUDGE W. H. WRIGHT BURIED IN SAVANNAH

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 29.—The funeral of Judge William H. Wright, member of the board of county commissioners, who died Thursday morning, were held Sunday from the First Baptist church.

Judge Wright died after a severe illness of two days from influenza and pneumonia. Judge Wright is survived by his wife and three brothers: R. Charlton Wright, of Asheville; A. P. Wright, of Jacksonville, and V. S. Wright, of Wildwood, Fla. He was born in Savannah in 1866.

Georgia Co-Eds Enter Cotton Dress Contest

ATHENS, Ga., March 29.—Georgia State College of Agriculture co-eds who are majoring in home economics will enter a contest in which prizes will be given for the best dress of cotton worn at the cotton ball to be held at the Georgia hotel Saturday evening, April 11.

Sponsored by the Athens Woman's Club and the Athens Tallulah Falls circle, proceeds derived from the ball will be given to the Tallulah Falls Industrial school, which now has 288 students registered, and 13 buildings on its campus.

COTTON GROUP MEETS IN SAVANNAH TODAY

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 29.—(AP) Matters of vital interest to the future prosperity of the south will be discussed at the eighth annual convention of the Atlantic Cotton Association, opening a two-day meeting here Monday.

D. H. Williams, of Gastonia, N. C., president of the organization, said Sunday the association is seeking a solution for some of the many current agricultural problems. He pressed the opinion that the tariff question would be one of the principal issues to come before the convention.

"I cannot see any possibility of foreign nations buying from us under present conditions," he said. "I believe we will get no farm relief until the agricultural marketing act is repealed."

Williams met with a number of committees today and will appoint a nominating committee tomorrow to select a slate of new officers to be voted on Tuesday.

Gastonia has made a bid for next year's convention.

The bodies arrived here late Sunday night.

WIDOW OF WINSHIP STAYS IN SECLUSION

Ashes of Retired Naval Officer Leave San Francisco for Macon.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 29.—(AP)—Sealed in a dull metal container, the ashes of Lieutenant-Commander Emory Winship, wealthy retired naval officer, who ended his life March 21 because of domestic troubles, left here Sunday night for Macon, Ga., where they will arrive Friday.

Because of the reluctance of Mrs. Dorothy Blount Winship, the attractive Georgian widow, who with her sister, Miss Eugenia Cuyler Blount, remained in seclusion, the fashionable Winship apartment, it was not learned whether the ashes were accompanied.

Mrs. Winship and her sister will return to Macon to attend the funeral, Miss Blount said, although she refused to name the day of departure.

"We will be there in time for the funeral," Miss Blount said. Mrs. Winship, whom a coroner's jury blamed for the suicide of her prominent husband, refused to comply with the request of Henry Winship, who requested the widow to deliver his father's ashes to Joseph W. Preston, Jr., Winship's business associate, who directed the delivery of the ashes to the carrier concern. It had been reported the ashes left yesterday.

The alleged feeling of bitterness between Preston and Mrs. Winship which developed during the coroner's inquest when Preston detailed Mrs. Winship's alleged association with Ray McConkey, family chauffeur, was heightened considerably by the disagreement over shipping instructions.

Mrs. Winship ignored Dillon Winship's request, Preston said, "Hagging over a man's ashes is, to say the least, undignified."

Mrs. Winship requested $750 from Mr. Preston, Miss Blount said, "with which to carry out the instructions of her husband's last wishes. This was refused."

Meanwhile Preston said he awaited the filing of Winship's will in Macon, probably tomorrow. It was reported the commander disinherited Mrs. Winship and left his estate to his son, Emory Winship, Jr.

MACON, Ga., March 29.—(AP)—General Blanton Winship and other members of the Winship family were waiting here Sunday for the ashes of Lieutenant-Commander Emory Winship, who shot and killed himself in his apartment in San Francisco eight days ago. They have no information, it was stated, as to when the ashes will arrive.

It will be after the funeral service that the will will be probated, it was stated. The naval officers had planned a large private mausoleum in a local cemetery. For that reason his former wife, the former Miss Katherine Dillon, of San Francisco, had never been buried. Her body occupies a crypt in a mausoleum at Riverside cemetery.

Miss Eugenia Blount, sister of the present Mrs. Winship, seldom visited here, friends of the family said.

State Deaths And Funerals
GUY W. ROGERS.
CEDARTOWN, Ga., March 29.—Guy W. Rogers, 31 years of age, died at his home here Sunday morning following a brief illness of pneumonia. He is survived by his widow and a daughter, Sarah Rogers. Funeral services will be conducted at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon.

MRS. LOUISE L. WISE.
AMERICUS, Ga., March 29.—Mrs. Louise Wise, 45, died at her home here Sunday after a week's illness of pneumonia. She was the wife of Dr. B. Thad Wise, one of the leading physicians of Sumter county. Mrs. Wise was a member of the Lutheran church at Plains, Ga., and had been active in club work and in the educational and religious life of the city for years. Besides her husband, she is survived by three daughters, Misses Louise Lamar Wise, Sarah Walker Wise and Laura Wise; two sons, Sam and Gene Wise; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. V. Lamar, of Columbus, Ga., and a brother, Tom Lamar, also of Columbus. The funeral will be held from the residence Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The Rev. Charles Phillips, of North Carolina, and the Rev. H. C. Seckinger, of Plains, Ga., will officiate.

MRS. GERTRUDE ROBERTS.
VALDOSTA, Ga., March 29.—Funeral services were held here Sunday for Mrs. Gertrude Roberts. The Rev. A. B. Linscomb, minister of the Church of Christ, officiated, and interment was in the Sunset Hill cemetery. Mrs. Roberts is survived by two sisters, Mrs. T. S. Scruggs and Mrs. Georgia Haynes, a brother, Walter S. Roberts, all of this city, and a niece, Mrs. W. G. Burge, of Columbia, South Carolina.

FRANK MURRAY.
THOMASVILLE, Ga., March 29.—Funeral services were held from the residence here Sunday afternoon for Frank Murray, who died Saturday. He was a member of the Baptist church and a Mason.

WILLIAM H. SPELL.
QUITMAN, Ga., March 29.—Funeral services for William H. Spell were held from the residence with the Rev. C. W. Henderson, of the First Baptist church, conducting. Mr. Spell, who was 72 years of age, died Thursday night. He is survived by his widow, who was Miss Emma Lou Steptoe before her marriage, and three children, J. T. and E. M. Spell and Miss Annette Spell.

H. J. BANKS.
FORSYTH, Ga., March 29.—Funeral services for H. J. Banks, 58, who died in a Macon hospital Friday, were held Sunday afternoon from the Forsyth Methodist church, with the Rev. A. G. Shanks officiating. Interment was in the Forsyth cemetery. Pallbearers, all negroes, were G. A. Hugh, Lewis and Ben Banks, L. O. Clements and Talmadge Alexander. Mr. Banks is survived by his widow, two sons, Albert and Julian Banks; two brothers, J. T. and G. B. Banks, of Forsyth, and a sister, Mrs. W. A. Maxwell, of Devereaux.

ADEL WOMAN DIES IN MIAMI HOSPITAL

MIAMI, Fla., March 29.—(AP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Overstreet Shaw, 72, former of Adel, Ga., died in a hospital here Saturday night, following a brief illness.

Mrs. Shaw came to Miami with her husband, the late Archibald H. Shaw, 11 years ago from Adel, where she had resided for 45 years.

She is survived by three sons, Henry, Martin and Mortimer, all of Miami. The body will be sent to Adel for burial.

GEORGE TO ADDRESS STATE PHARMACISTS
MACON, Ga., March 29.—(AP)—Senator Walter F. George is on the program to address members of the Georgia Pharmaceutical Association during its annual meeting here April 22-23. About 400 pharmacists are expected to attend.

Judge Roscoe Luke, of Thomasville, is on the program for an address on "Economic Conditions." Most of the other addresses are to be made by those connected with the trade. A buffet luncheon, golf tournament, barbecue, dance and picnic lunch are among the social events planned for the visitors.

Song-Writing Contest Announced By Future Farmers' Organization

TIFTON, Ga., March 29.—M. D. Mobley, assistant supervisor of agricultural education in Georgia, Saturday announced a song-writing contest in which members of the Georgia Association of Future Farmers of America may compete.

Mr. Mobley, adviser to the state Future Farmers' organization, received the notification from W. A. Ross, of the federal board for vocational education, Washington, D. C., executive secretary of the national association of vocational agriculture students.

The object of the contest, stated the adviser, is to obtain an appropriate official song which will symbolize, as far as possible, the characteristics, ideals and purposes of the organization.

A prize of $150 will be awarded the author of the winning composition. Under the rules of the contest, the song selected will become the property of the Future Farmers, but the name of the author or authors will appear on the song when it is published according to Mr. Mobley.

The Washington letter said that the selection of the song probably will be made at the fourth annual congress of the Future Farmers of America, to be held in Kansas City in November.

Pulitzer Prize-Winning Play Rehearsed by Georgia Students

ATHENS, Ga., March 29.—The Thalian Dramatic Club of the University of Georgia is rehearsing the Pulitzer prize-winning play, "Craig's Wife," by George Kelly, in preparation for the road trip to be taken in April. The play was presented in Athens March 3 under the sponsorship of the Georgia chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic fraternity.

The play will be taken to Augusta April 10, where the performance will be sponsored by the Theater League of that city. Engagements have been secured for Wesleyan College in Macon, under the sponsorship of the Wesleyan Dramatic Club, and Bessie Tift College in Forsyth, to be sponsored by the senior class. The club will make the trips to Wesleyan and Bessie Tift during the third week in April.

Miss Manita Bullock has reassumed direction of the production, following the absence due to a death in the family. During her absence, in which the Athens performance was given, Miss Mary Hart, former president of the club, directed the players.

The cast will include: Miss Sarah Thurmond, Athens; John Gallaway, Athens; Miss Caribel Finger, Gainesville; Miss Mary Hart, Athens; Crozier Wood, Winder; W. G. Wells, Fort Benning; Miss Pauline Stevens, Brunswick; Miss Mildred Cartledge, Augusta; Miss Margaret Stone, Tampa, Fla.; Donald Moore, Elberton, and James Cobb, Jr., Savannah.

G. M. C. YOUTH'S BODY STILL UNRECOVERED

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., March 29.—(AP)—The body of Leroy Pencock, Georgia Military College cadet, who was drowned in the Ogeechee river here Saturday morning, had not been recovered Sunday night.

The river had been dragged and dynamited for some distance below the scene of the drowning. The stream has risen about six feet since the young man was drowned.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sauls Peacock, of Eastman, Ga., have been here ever since the drowning. Hundreds of people joined in the search today. Motor boats were used in the hunt. A patrol will be maintained until the body is found, it was stated.

The last will include: Miss Sarah Thurmond, Athens; John Gallaway, Athens; Miss Caribel Finger, Gainesville; Miss Mary Hart, Athens; Crozier Wood, Winder; W. G. Wells, Fort Benning; Miss Pauline Stevens, Brunswick; Miss Mildred Cartledge, Augusta; Miss Margaret Stone, Tampa, Fla.; Donald Moore, Elberton, and James Cobb, Jr., Savannah.

DAWSON MAN KILLED AS AUTO OVERTURNS
J. C. Crutchfield, 25, Dies in Accident Near Eufula, Alabama.

EUFAULA, Ala., March 29.—(AP)—J. C. Crutchfield, 25, of Dawson, Ga., was killed when the automobile in which he and two other men were riding overturned on the Dawson-Eufaula highway 10 miles from here late Sunday. Crutchfield's companions were slightly injured.

The injured: Ralph Howard and Mike Donaldson, high school students, both believed to have fractured skulls, and Buddy Gladden.

The young men were said to have been driving at high speed in a light car, and, according to officers who investigated, attempted to pass between the bus and another car that had parked at the side of the road to allow the bus to pass.

EDWARDS TO ADDRESS GEORGIA FAIRS BODY
MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., March 29.—Representative H. B. Edwards, of Lowndes county, has accepted an invitation of the Association of Georgia Fairs to make one of the principal addresses at the annual three-day convention of the association in Waycross April 13-15, according to announcement of C. B. McCullar, president of the association.

German Shepherd Pups Nursed by Milk Goats

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 29.—(AP)—The goats and the dogs in Savannah have assumed a more endearing cordial since two Tuggenburg milk goats were nursing the twelve puppies of Gretchen Von Effenstrasse, a German shepherd dog, belonging to Assistant United States District Attorney G. Noble Jones.

The original litter was composed of fourteen, but two of the male puppies gave up the struggle for sustenance. Mr. Jones, being in a quandary about the numerous brood, nine males and three females, of Gretchen, got the two milk goats as foster mothers. The runtish cub group is progressing with extraordinary vigor and health, the first time that the goats and the dogs have lived so amicably together in Savannah, so far as Mr. Jones can recall.

B. Y. P. U. DELEGATES GATHER IN CANTON

CANTON, Ga., March 29.—Delegates began arriving here Sunday night for the annual two-day convention of the Baptist Young People's Union of northwest Georgia, which opens Monday.

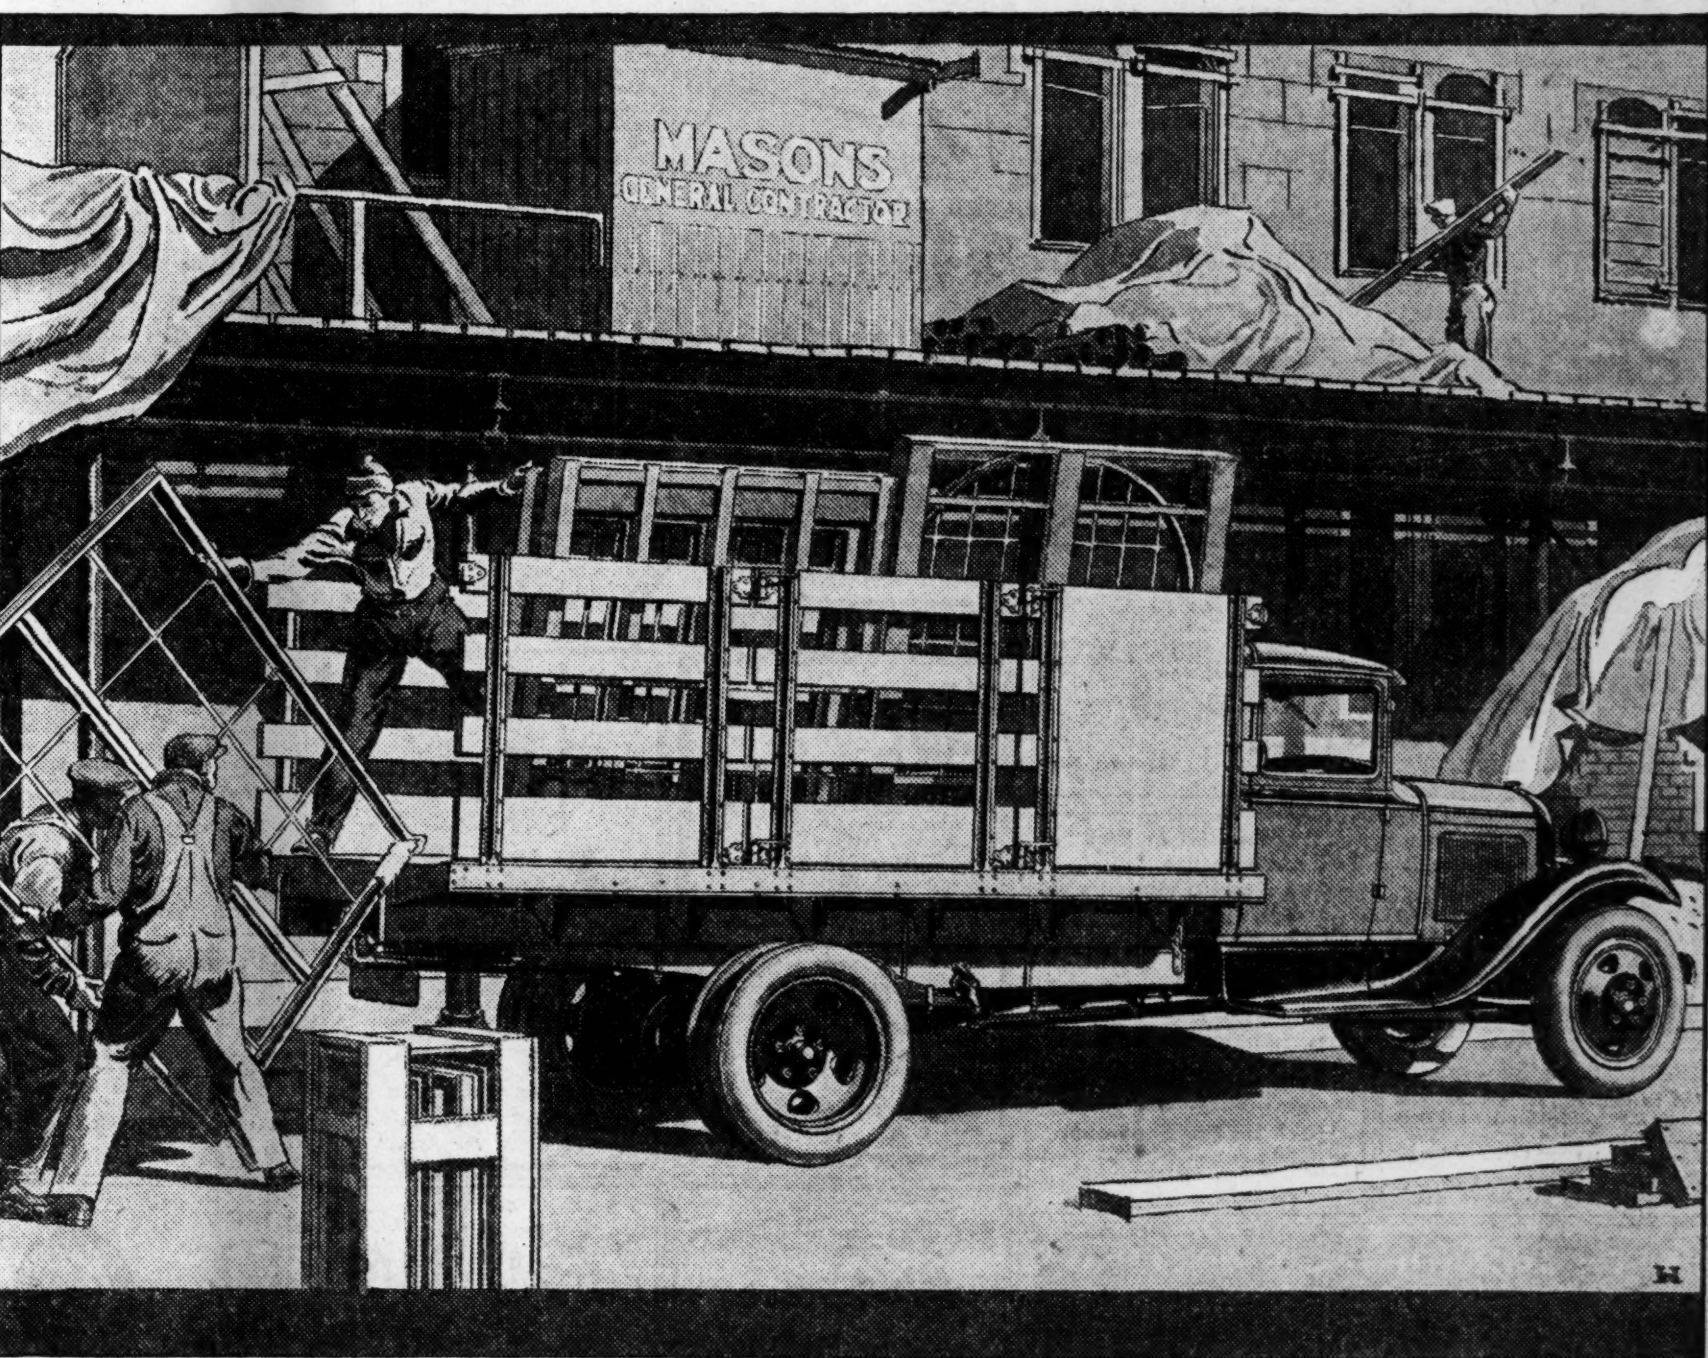

Two hundred delegates are expected to register by Monday morning, according to Carl McGinnis, of Chickamauga, regional president. He will preside at all sessions of the meeting. Miss Emma Sutherland, of Cave Spring, is regional leader of the organization.

Twenty counties, with a total B. Y. P. U. membership of more than 5,000, will be represented at the assemblage. Dr. R. C. Daily, of Shorter College, Rome, and Versil S. Crenshaw, Richmond, Va., will speak at the opening session Monday. Dr. Daily is professor of American history and political science at Shorter College. Mr. Crenshaw has been serving for several years as state B. Y. P. U. worker of Virginia.

Monday night, and at a sunrise service Tuesday morning Dr. Walter P. Binn, LaGrange, will be the inspirational leader. Dr. Binn is a graduate of Mercer University, Macon, and of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky. He served for three years as state president of the B. Y. P. U. Convention of Georgia. Parks R. Warnock, Atlanta, director of the B. Y. P. U. department of the Druid Hills Baptist church, the state banner department, will talk Monday night.

For mile after mile of low-cost hauling

THE FORD TRUCK

The Stake body on the chassis with 157-inch wheelbase. This type is widely used by manufacturers, contractors and shippers, and for industrial hauling generally.

THE owners of Ford trucks, everywhere, have found that Ford economy goes far beyond the saving in first cost alone. Fine materials, precision workmanship, and simplicity of construction increase the reliability of Ford units, helping to keep them out of the shop, and on the job. During months of constant use, and thousands of miles of service, their low cost of up-keep becomes a saving of first importance.

Another economical feature of the Ford is the ease with which adjustments or repairs are made. In every locality, there is a nearby Ford dealer who gives prompt and efficient service, at low cost. Because of this, Ford units are seldom idle when there is hauling to be done.

Every day, throughout the country, Ford trucks and delivery cars are serving a larger number of businesses. There is a type specifically adapted for every hauling purpose. The Ford 1½-ton truck is available with 131½-inch or 157-inch wheelbase, single or dual rear wheels, high or low rear-axle gear-ratios, open or closed cabs, and with a comprehensive range of bodies. All types can be supplied in many color-combinations.

The light delivery-car, which has the same chassis as the Model A Ford car, can be equipped with bodies to suit any light hauling requirement.

Your Ford dealer can show you a unit that will do your hauling economically.

★ FEATURES ★ of Ford Commercial Units

Four-cylinder, 40-horse-power engine. Torque-tube drive. Internal-expanding mechanical brakes, all fully enclosed. Forty different kinds of steel for specific purposes. Extensive use of fine steel forgings. More than 20 ball and roller bearings. Three different wheelbases. Two different chassis. Triplex shatter-proof windshields. Low first cost. Low cost of operation and maintenance. Reliability and long life. You may purchase a Ford truck or light commercial car on convenient, economical terms through the Authorized Ford Finance Plans of the Universal Credit Company.

"A population of 500,000 by 1935" is Atlanta's slogan. Let's all pull together for a Greater Atlanta.

DEMAND INCREASES FOR SCRAP METALS

"It may be words of encouragement to the general public and businessmen in particular," says G. E. Luttrell, resident manager of Knight-Rubber Company, of Avon avenue, "to know that there has recently been a demand for great quantities of scrap iron."

"The market in iron and steel has always been a good barometer of present and future business conditions, and the recent advances in the raw products have quickened the demand for broken and scrap metals."

"This means that there are orders at hand, or in sight, for millions of tons of iron and steel, and where steel is wanted in buildings, it means great quantities of other materials and millions in wages. Where the iron is wanted to make new machinery and other equipment, or household utensils, then it means more millions will change hands and be put in circulation in scores of ways."

"Just to substantiate these statements take our own case here in Atlanta. Right now we are shipping from our main yard here an average of 100 tons of scrap metals every day, and we are acting as brokers for more than 50 tons more every day. This is a good deal of scrap metals to leave one city every day and yet we want as much more, if we can get it, and will pay much higher prices than we could have done a few months ago."

"We also know that no city the size of Atlanta could give us several carloads of metals every day, over a long period, but we do know that there are great quantities of broken or old metals out on the farms, or in the yards, garages and basements of country as well as small-town homes, and we can pay cash for all we can get."

IMPROVEMENTS MADE IN NEW OIL BURNERS

W. M. Timmons, manager of the fuel oil department of Randall Brothers, Inc., recently returned from a visit to Stamford, Conn., where the new and improved No-Kol and Petro automatic oil burners are made, and is highly pleased at the factory experience he was able to obtain.

Mr. Timmons said: "When the invitation was extended to us to go so far from Atlanta, in the midst of our busiest fuel oil season, we took a little time to consider it, and then, realizing our responsibilities to the several hundred automatic oil heater owners we serve in the Atlanta territory, the officials of Randall Brothers, Inc., deemed it advisable that I should attend this international conference of managers and engineers concerned with the new oil burner."

"In company with fellow sales managers, engineers and service men," continued Mr. Timmons, "we spent several days with the Petroleum Heat and Power Company engineers in the different factory departments and laboratories, studying the assembling and testing of the new and improved various devices that are going into the products of this great manufacturing and service company."

"I was especially interested in a new commercial and industrial burner that is known as Model 'W' and is designed for large buildings, such as churches, schools, apartment houses, hotels, banks, department stores, club and lodge rooms, hospitals, creosote and roofing plants. This new model is remarkable for its simplicity in design, and yet produces an enormous amount of heat when burned at small fuel costs.

"Another new household and industrial unit I was very much interested in was the Petro automatic boiler and burner combined. This new boiler will go with either oil or natural gas heat, and has been designed to develop quick economical heat. A splendid feature about this new burner is it can be changed over from one fuel to another in very quick time."

WALL PAPER STORE GETS GOOD START

J. F. Saunders, from the Knoxville headquarters of Sterchi Brothers, Inc., incorporated, who recently came to Atlanta to open a new wall paper department in connection with their regular lines of furniture and other household goods, expresses himself as being highly pleased with the splendid reception accorded this new department.

"We felt sure from the outset," says Mr. Saunders, "that those who were in need of wall paper would appreciate the innovations we put into effect in displaying the many beautiful and distinctive patterns and grades of wall paper we are offering. Our swinging panels, showing side walls, border and ceiling combinations, just as they appear in the homes when complete, gives the customer a splendid opportunity of seeing the color and design combinations, just as they appear in the homes when complete, gives the customer a splendid opportunity of seeing the color and design combinations, just as they appear in the homes when complete."

C. A. Stephenson, a man of many years' experience in the wall paper business, is manager of the new department.

Americans Play Prominent Roles At All-India National Congress

KARACHI, India, March 29.—(AP) Next to Mahatma Gandhi the most conspicuous figures at the sessions of the all-India national congress here are two Americans dressed in Hindu fashion, Carlton Washburn, superintendent of schools at Winnetka, Ill., and Boyd W. Tucker, of Mansfield, Ohio, who have joined India's independence movement.

Tucker, who formerly was connected with the Methodist Episcopal missionary organization and now is associated with the school of the Indian poet, Rabindranath Tagore, is Gandhi's personal guest. He lives in a tent adjoining the Mahatma's quarters and participates in all of the nationalist leader's prayers.

The Ohioan goes barefooted and eats the Hindu ritualistic food. Although as a missionary he gave the British a pledge to observe neutrality and refrain from taking part in politics, he has actively associated himself with the work of the congress. Gandhi frequently consults him and often asks him to correct his English.

Washburn is making a study of educational conditions abroad for the Roosevelt Foundation in Chicago, which is trying to synthesize the educational systems of the world. Wearing white Hindu lincolns, homespun cotton shawls, white Gandhi caps and sandals, these two Americans are a source of constant curiosity as they appear in the congress among so many brown Hindus and Moslems.

While the Indians consider it a great compliment to their race for the Americans to identify themselves with the independence movement and dress in Indian fashion, the British authorities regard their conduct with disfavor.

Similar criticism has been directed by the British against Edward Holt, a radical of Boston, Mass., who gained notoriety at the time of the Sacco-Vanzetti case. Although he retains his Americanism and has not adopted the Hindu dress or manners, he is said by the British to have encouraged the nationalists to overthrow the British power. He is said to have pressed Geneva as the venue for the second round table conference and urged appointment of an international commission to investigate alleged necessities of the part of police in dealing with the nationalists.

The British government was understood to have been the point of deporting James for his support of nationalist revolutionary aims, but finally decided to allow him to remain rather than to offend American radicals.

The Superior Mattress Company, of 835 Bankhead avenue, is making progress year after year and is entering the busy season better prepared than ever to serve customers, having recently added some machines that will expedite work.

The men at the head of this progressive West End company depend greatly on the friends they have made their customers the years they have been in business. Mattress renovating work must to a large extent be left to the men doing the work. If the work is well done and the customers can see their old lumpy, hard mattress returned with new ticking, soft and comfortable, the question is how long will they remain that way. The many satisfied customers is the answer.

This firm has always made it a practice to carry the very latest in new and fancy covering as well as the old standards in bed tickings and their outside salesmen and drivers carry samples which allows the owners of the old mattress to select what ever shade or pattern they may wish. The Superior Mattress Company, through their fast trucks, renovating machines and expert workmen, has been able to give one-day service in all renovating work, but where necessary quicker service can be given.

GRANGE REAFFIRMS DEBENTURE STAND
WASHINGTON, March 29.—(AP) The National Grange today reaffirmed its advocacy of agricultural debenture for disposition of agricultural production surpluses.

The need for "additional machinery," the executive committee of the grange said in a statement, was emphasized by the farm board announcement that it would not attempt to stabilize the 1931 wheat crop.

"Although definite figures are not available," the committee said, "it is altogether probable that if a moderate rate of export debenture had been in effect during the past year, the returns to the farmer would have been greater, the cost to the treasury would have been less and we would not now be burdened with such a price depressing carryover."

NATIONAL TO CLEAN NEW STATE BUILDING

The new building just completed for the Georgia state highway department, across from the state capitol, will be cleaned and janitor-serviced by the National Window Cleaning Company of 18 1/2 Ivy street.

As cleaning of office and public buildings, windows and store fronts has been the daily routine for this company for over 20 years, they can do it much quicker and very often with less inconvenience to the occupants and visitors than those whose daily work and vocation is something else. Then again they have just the right equipment and cleaning compounds that long experience has shown them will do the most effective work without damage to the surface being cleaned.

This firm is just as well prepared to clean the modest home or palatial residence from attic to basement as office buildings and is very helpful to the housewife who may be getting her spring cleaning over with quickly. Their well trained, silent workmen, under the watchful eye of one of their outside inspectors, do all kinds of house and window cleaning without noise, litter or mess to disturb the routine of the household.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(AP) James B. Aswell, Jr., 25-year-old son of the late Louisiana representative, announced today he would not be a candidate to succeed his father.

Young Aswell, a writer, had been urged by friends to run for the unexpired term from the eighth district, which his father represented for 18 years. Governor Huey Long has announced he will call a special election probably for May 12.

"I could find no record of my poll tax which I thought had been paid last year," he said. "Rather than face any sort of contest over it at this time, I decided against running."

BROTHER'S SHOT KILLS DANCE HALL OPERATOR

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 29.—(AP) Ben Hanover, 52, dance hall proprietor shot early this morning by one of his brothers, died later and was buried this afternoon. He exonerated Samuel Hanover, who was questioned and released by police.

The Hanovers said the gun fired accidentally as Samuel Hanover attempted to quiet two quarreling patrons of the hall.

Survivors include two other brothers, Dave Hanover, assistant United States district attorney, and Joe Hanover, attorney, both of Memphis.

FIRST MOTHERS' SORORITY ORGANIZED AT GEORGIA TECH

Mrs. Stowe Named President Of Local Chapter of Phi Eta

The only mothers' sorority in the south was organized Sunday at Georgia Tech when a group of mothers of the members of the Phi Kappa Tau fraternity formed a club which will be known as the Phi Eta chapter of the Phi Eta sorority, with Mrs. L. N. Stowe as president. Phi Eta is the national mothers' club of the Phi Kappa Tau fraternity and the chapter at Tech is the seventeenth of its kind to be organized.

This organization is unique in that it is believed to be the first of its kind in the Greek fraternity world. Since the establishment of the Phi chapter of Phi Kappa Tau on the campus of the University of Southern California, the mothers have taken an active interest in the affairs of the fraternity. The members of the fraternities, realizing that an organized group of some kind would be an invaluable asset to them, the first mothers' club was formed in May, 1926, on the campus of the University of Southern California with Mrs. C. L. Cives as president. Feeling the need later of a stronger bond and a deeper relationship than that afforded by a local aid society, the Phi chapter of the University of California called a meeting of the mothers who were members of the original club and installed the Greek letter sorority, Phi Eta, January 17, 1927, Mrs. Libby Rhot Cutting being elected president.

Other officers elected to serve with Mrs. Stowe and installed at the organization meeting at Tech were: Mrs. L. O. Laney, vice president; Mrs. W. F. Chester, secretary; Mrs. Gertrude Frakes, recording secretary; Mrs. Harry Payne, treasurer; Mrs. C. B. Brennan, chaplain, and Mrs. Marvin Boyd, marshal.

Charter Members.

The charter members of the sorority are Mesdames T. L. Wright, A. S. Hopkins, H. L. McEwen, C. B. Brennan, G. Frakes, Ida Holland, L. N. Stowe, W. F. Chester, L. O. Laney, C. Y. McCollum, Harry Payne and Marvin Boyd.

Frank H. Reynolds, president, and A. F. Hunt, secretary, of Phi Kappa Tau, assisted by the active members of the Tech chapter, made the installation of this sorority possible.

Tau Kappa Phis Give Dance.

Tau Kappa Phi sorority gave a dance at the home of Miss Dottie Fowles, 1232 West Peachtree street, recently.

The guests included: Misses Dot Craig, president; Mary Belle Johnston, vice president; Rebecca Ford, secretary; Martha Crawford, treasurer; Dottie Fowles, Caroline Hawthorn, Judy Harbour, Betty Higdon, Dola Osborne, Kitty Craig, Marie Camp, Mary Garland, Rita Crawford, Billie Whidden, Bernice Rose, Bee Huxley, Cecile Martin, Claire Bullock, Lelia Camp, Bobby Hanner, Dolly Newman, Annette Blanton, Anna Elizabeth McAlroy, Lucile Cook, Kathleen Thomas, Nan Glass, Mary Weekley, Hortense Bousseau.

Mrs. Spurlin Honored.

A surprise birthday party featured the business meeting of the Atlanta chapter of Stewart Avenue M. E. church, honoring Mrs. Arthur Spurlin, president, at the home of Mrs. J. C. Kitchens, on Catherine street, Thursday, March 26. The guests included Mesdames George Smith, H. B. Moore, P. M. McKenney, J. F. Cook, B. E. Cook, H. H. Allen, R. B. Shindelbower, George Davis, J. E. Betterson, J. E. Dickerson, E. C. Florence, W. H. Russell, J. C. Kitchens, Arthur Spurlin, H. E. Hoffman, J. H. H. McBrayer, R. E. Chollman, Elmer Garrett, R. T. When I see gray I see old age. Youth is every woman's right, so don't let hair get gray. Just use this improved formula made from that wonderful old recipe of common sage tea and sulphur. Nothing better. Gray disappears overnight. And after two or three applications your hair will be the exact shade you want. So easily, so naturally darkened nobody'll ever know. Just pay your druggist 75c for a bottle of Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur and follow the simple directions.

REDDY KNOWS WHEN HE HAS ENOUGH.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

Enough is all you ever need. And wanting more betokens greed. —Old Mother Nature.

Having discovered where the nest of Whittail the Marsh Hawk was, Reddy Fox was satisfied for the present. He hadn't actually seen that nest, for the bushes growing around it hid it from anyone not looking down on it, but a telltale feather that had fallen from the tail of Mrs. Whittail enabled Reddy to guess exactly where that nest was. He knew every inch of that little dry mound just a little way in from the lower side of the Old Pasture.

"Mrs. Whittail dropped that feather, for now I think of it," Reddy thought.

That feather wasn't white. It was brownish with dusky bars across it. The long feathers of the tail of a Marsh Hawk are not white, but the short feathers that cover the base of the tail are pure white, making a white spot easily seen from some distance. So his neighbors call Mr. Marsh Hawk Whittail. Mrs. Whittail is brown while Whittail himself is bluish gray, and he is smaller than his mate.

Reddy didn't try to get any nearer that nest that day. "She is still sitting on eggs," thought Reddy. "If there were babies there she and Whittail would be bringing food."

INSTALLMENT VII.

"Yes; with the Delvilles," Greta's tone was nonchalant. "Why?"

"Is Ronnie?"

"No. He's busy tonight. You're going, I suppose?"

"Yes. Mother's got a party."

"Who?"

"The Hardwicks and Colonel James, and the Comte and Comtesse de Verillane and Feodor Staire."

"Feodor Staire," Greta echoed, and for an appreciable second she stood quite still, then stooping took a cigarette from a box and lit it.

"I didn't know you knew Feodor Staire until last night," she said. "Is he attached—already?"

Toni ignored the little sneer that came so strangely from that lovely mouth; she could afford to do so.

"More or less," she answered, with elaborate carelessness; "more, in the near future, I hope. I am going to marry him."

"What?"

This time there was no mistaking Greta's amazement, for she swung around and stared at her sister. "You are joking?"

"You don't know him. It's absurd—"

"It's true. You're being absurd," Greta. Why shouldn't I marry Feodor Staire?"

Toni's voice held a note of anger, and Lady Alice interposed to save further unpleasantness.

"It is quite true, Greta. After all, we know a good deal about Feodor Staire from Ronald, and I have met him several times in the past year. I am quite satisfied."

Greta pressed out the half-smoked cigarette and looked up at her sister.

"You are a fast worker," she said. "I hope you won't find it work for nothing."

"Which means you hope I will—oh, well, what do I care? See you tonight!" And pursing her lips to a whistle and doing elaborate Charleston steps Toni quitted the room, leaving Lady Alice alone with her elder daughter, whereupon Greta dropped her slender length into a chair.

"Toni's impossible! The idea of her marrying Feodor Staire is preposterous! He'll be tired of her in a month!"

"My dear Greta," for once Lady Alice's tone was severe, "your constant criticism of Toni only reacts on yourself. Is Ronald so content with your latest—craziness that you can throw stones at your sister?"

The color deepened faintly in Greta's face.

"I fail to see why you should consider D'Arblaye a craze. He dances well and he is amusing. Why should Ronald object?"

"I think he does, and I certainly do, although it is not exactly my affair now. D'Arblaye is not the right sort of man."

"Oh—absurd!" Greta's impatience passed the bounds of good manners. "Don't be ridiculous, mother. He's a man of the world. That's all. Do you expect a saint?"

Yet an hour or two later when Ronald—detained by his work in the office of L'Etoile, Gerald Astley's paper—telephoned to his flat in Passy, Greta's answer was charmingly reassuring.

"Oh no, darling. The Delvilles, yes. D'Arblaye may be there—he's usually at the big shows, isn't he? But I'm with the Delvilles' party. You need not be in the least jealous. Stupid—You know I adore you."

Ronald hung up the receiver with a sigh quickly checked, and went on with his work; but he knew Greta, her willfulness, the danger of her great beauty, and her absorption in herself. He was not afraid she would go too far with any of the fascinated men who hovered round her; she was intensely cold, and an adept at taking much and giving little, and knew better than he how difficult it was ever to rouse her to any real warmth, or to move her either by passion or anger. Nothing gave her quite so much pleasure as the contemplation of herself and her social successes. She had not the temperament that is carried away by generous response or unwelcome warmth of feeling; Ronald had no need to feel real jealousy, but what he did feel was a soreness that she could so easily go against his wishes, and a sick disappointment that she, so lovely, so thoroughbred, could enjoy the society of such a man as Henri D'Arblaye.

Toni opened her eyes one morning about a week later and lay in comfortable, drowsy luxury between waking and sleeping, wondering why she felt so extraordinarily happy. She had been used, this last week, to waking up happy, but today seemed even better than usual, and she wondered why, and then suddenly remembered that tonight was to be the big dinner party that her mother was giving to celebrate her engagement, and that on the morrow they were leaving Paris for Lady Alice's house in Brittany. Toni was very modern; she, like her mother, she adored the excitement of town life; but she also adored the chateau in the park above the river, with its terraces, its garden, its animals and the delightful house parties. It would be so new, so extraordinarily wonderful this year because Feodor would come, too. Feodor, and she would wander about those lovely gardens together . . . and, at the thought . . . Toni suddenly sat up, tossing back her fair, short hair.

"I believe I'm old-fashioned," she said aloud in a tone of horror. "I'm sentimental. I'm terribly in love. I intend to be a good wife . . . oh, damn! I must be getting old, or what's the matter? Does everybody change when they fall in love?"

Her voice, which had been louder than she intended, aroused the attention of her maid, who was in the next room, and as Marie came in, smiling at Toni, whom she worshipped, she said: "Did Mademoiselle call me?"

Toni shook her head.

"No, I didn't call you, Marie, but it's time I got up. What is the time? Half-past nine! Oh, mon Dieu! And I've got a dozen things to do. My hair's got to be washed at 11. My bath quickly, Marie! Why didn't you wake me before?"

"Madame said you were to be left in peace as long as possible," Marie said. "You were tired last night, mademoiselle; she had had an exciting time, and today is more exciting than ever."

Marie, like all French women, adored a romance. She thought that Toni's love affair was the most wonderful she had ever known, and she equally adored Feodor, who was always charming in his manner to those who served him.

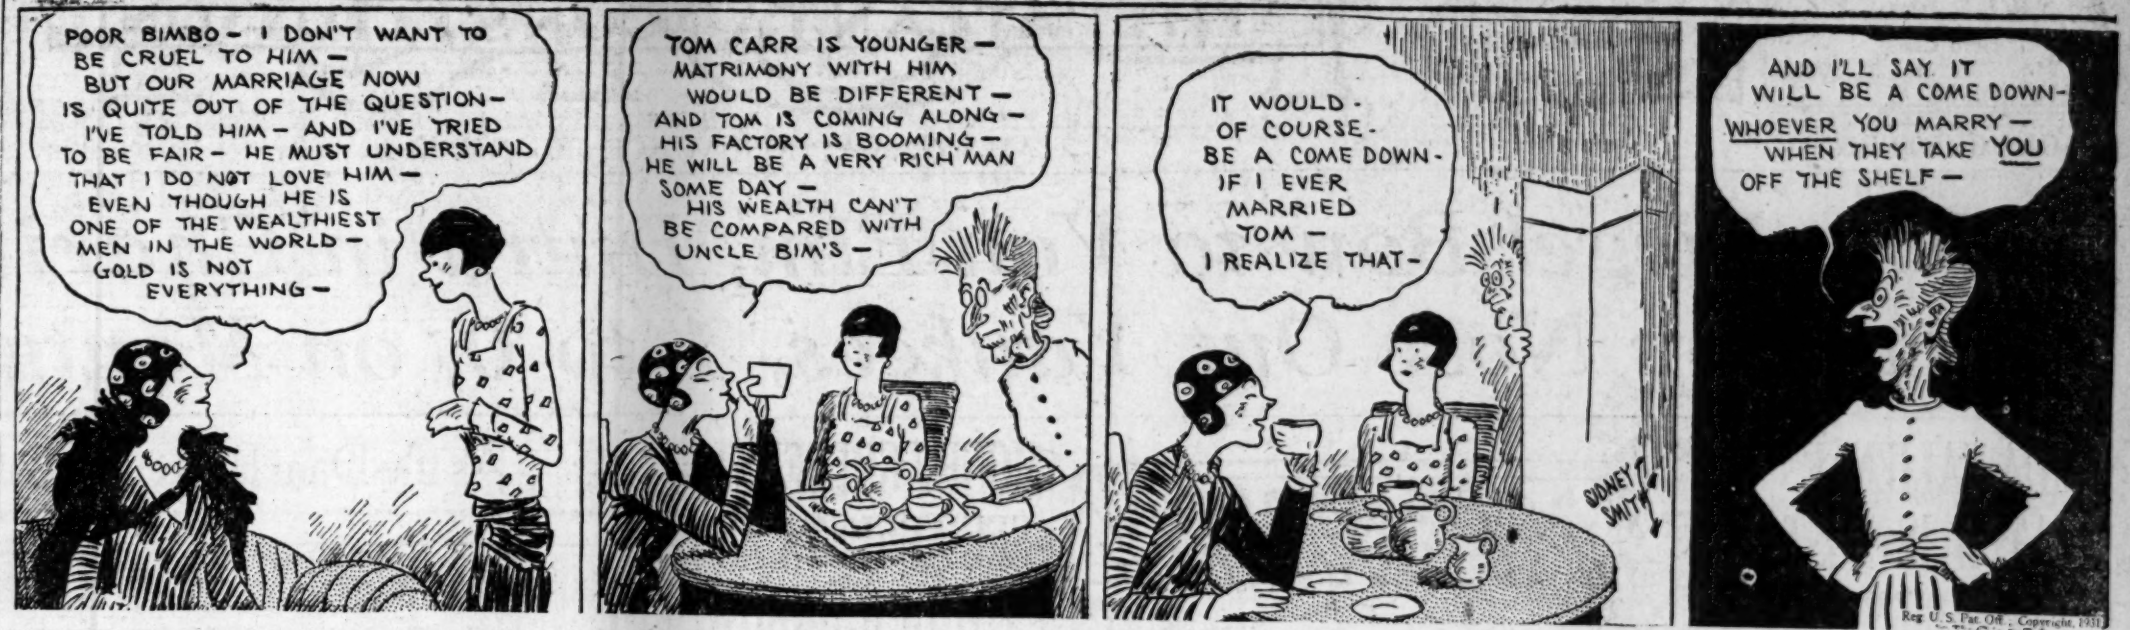

Toni had not yet gotten used to the fact that Feodor Staire was a great personality in the social and diplomatic world, but she did still every time she realized that he loved her, and she loved him. It was all so wonderful, it was like a fairy tale, and she looked down with an air of pitying content on one or two friends who happened to be engaged to men more or less their own age.

Between Toni and Greta there had been an added coldness during the week following the younger sister's engagement to Staire. Greta was never a great friend of good manners, and she was a good deal older than Toni; she was of an entirely different temperament; and deep in her heart now she was desperately furious with her sister. She had been fond of Ronald; no woman could have been otherwise; he was considerate, kind, and loved her very faithfully. To many women, too, he was extremely attractive, but Greta was of the type that could never remain faithful, at least in mind, and she was already tired and sick to death of her husband. She desired new experiences, and she had made up her mind that her next conquest, though she did not express it to herself quite so bluntly, should be Feodor Staire. The fact that Feodor Staire, who had the reputation of being very aloof with women, desired the attraction he had for them, and the respect he paid to them, should actually have fallen in love—and fallen in love with her younger sister—whom she affected to despise as a raw girl, stung her very deeply.

Shortstop Is Strongest Position on All National League Clubs

Even Bucs, Reds and Braves Are Happy In Their Own.

By Dixon Stewart.
United Press Correspondent.

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP)—Although metropolitan baseball fans spend long hours arguing whether Travis Jackson, of the Giants, or Glenn Wright, of the Robins, is baseball's greatest shortstop, the two New York stars have been unable to win similar support in other cities.

Shortstop is the nation's league's strongest individual position and supporters of five clubs are ready to advance the claims of their own team's shortstop for premier position.

Leo Durocher, of the Cincinnati Reds, is the only regular shortstop in the league who failed to win mention last season as a candidate for all-star berth. Against less strenuous opposition, Durocher might be considered a star.

Brooklyn fans are ready to fight anyone who suggests that Glenn Wright has a superior, and New York fans are almost as rabid regarding Jackson's ability.

Charley Gelbert is given much of the credit for the winning of the 1930 pennant and the youngster is rated as the best in the game.

Chicago fans are convinced that Woody English is the best infielder in the league, whether at shortstop or third, and Bill Jurgens, rookie candidate, already is being touted as a likely pretender to honors.

Dick Bartell and Tommy Thoenow had strong supporters last season at Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, respectively, and now that they have been traded doubtless will trade clientele.

Even 39-year-old Rabbit Maranville, of the Boston Braves, is among the nominees for the league's most valuable shortstop. The veteran played the greatest ball of his long career last season and despite his age can hold his own with the youngsters.

The Rabbit has been playing good ball in exhibition games and declares that careful study of George Sisler last season has improved his batting style and will enable him to increase his hitting by 20 points.

Records last season provided little material for supporters of the various candidates. The shortstops were closely bunched in fielding, Maranville leading the group with .967 and Bartell trailing at .940. Jackson headed the contestants in hitting, with a .338 average, with all of the other regulars, except Durocher, above the .250 mark.

The averages were as follows:
Travis Jackson, .338 .586
Woody English, .338 .586
Glenn Wright, .338 .586
Dick Bartell, .338 .586
Charley Gelbert, .338 .586
Tommy Thoenow, .338 .586
Rabbit Maranville, .338 .586
Leo Durocher, .338 .586

Vols Nose Reading In 13-Inning Game
NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 29.—(AP)—The Nashville Volunteers, after battling uphill for 12 innings, scored a run in the 13th frame to defeat the Reading club of the International League, 11 to 10, today in their first exhibition game of the season.

The winning run resulted from a two-base hit by Partridge, Nashville second baseman, and a line single by McEwen, rookie catcher. Reading built up a 10-to-5 lead over the Vols in the first five innings by hitting Willis Vols' regular, Freddie, Bill Drell, rookie hurler, pitched the last eight innings and held the visitors to five hits and got credit for the victory.

Hot Dog Mileage Paces Bike Riders
NEW YORK, March 29.—Six-day bike races pedal hundreds of miles during their grind and with every lap the mileage on the odometer consumed by the crowds and by the racers mounts higher and higher. Fred Kamen, manager of concessions at Madison Square Garden, has exhibited his "odometer" that shows an accurate record of foods eaten at all events and today announced some startling statistics.

"A six-day bike race crowd eats from two to six tons of skinned frankfurters," said Mr. Kamen. "The skinned frankfurter runs about 16,000 to the ton. Each is approximately six inches long, hence the frankfurter marathon stretches from three to nine miles. The track has about 10 laps to the mile, so the racers would have to steal from 30 to 90 laps to overtake the frankfurter pace if all the frankfurters were laid end to end around the track."

Mr. Kamen declared that the skinned variety, introduced at the Garden three years ago, has proved immensely popular with the crowds and with the racers. The bike men like it especially as it's easy on the tummy.

NATS BEAT ORIOLES.
GULFPORT, Miss., March 29.—(AP)—Batting lustily behind the steady hurling of Rookie Tauscher, the Senators today pounded out an 11-to-4 victory over the Baltimore Orioles in one of their numerous exhibition games.

Tauscher held the Orioles to four hits and no runs in five innings. Al Schacht, Nick Altrock's partner as the American league's comedy team, was a training camp casualty today, but will see no ill effects. Schacht, umpiring, was hit over the heart by a foul and knocked unconscious for 10 minutes.

He refused to get in an ambulance, declaring it would bring him bad luck. Baltimore (N.Y.) 000 002 200-4 8 3

PHILS HAVE CROONER.
JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 29.—(AP)—When the Phillies paid a wad of money for Les Mallon, second baseman of the Philadelphia Athletics, they bought a first-class radio crooner. The Texas youth is in better shape right now for singing than for playing ball, for he has been slow moving into condition.

Mallon had a radio job in Dallas for the last two winters crooning and introducing sports speakers. "It started three years ago," Mallon said, "when a friend took me to a radio station. One of the artists failed to show up and they asked me

BIG MIDDLEKAUF SIGNED FOR MAT SLATE TUESDAY

Ex - 'Gator, Replacing Hills, Is Good Foe For Paxos.

By Paul Middlekauf.

Big Bill Middlekauf, the former University of Florida football star who is making a name for himself on the professional wrestling mats these days, will oppose John Paxos, the Greek star who rivals Jim London when it comes to physical perfection, in the semi-windup bout on Matchmaker Henry Weber's program at the Atlanta Auditorium Wednesday night.

Middlekauf was secured as Paxos' opponent by Weber. His addition strengthens the card materially. Paxos had originally been scheduled to face a newcomer, George Hills, in the semi-windup bout on Matchmaker Henry Weber's program at the Atlanta Auditorium Wednesday night.

Hills is a big fellow who has but recently invaded the mat game after leaving the lumber camps of the north woods. He is reported to be a comer, but is still green and inexperienced. He was regarded as a poor match for Paxos, who has been around for some time and would probably have had a most easy time of it.

Paxos will find himself plenty hard pressed. It is not unlikely that he will be beaten. Middlekauf has been in the game for a comparatively short time, but he has acquired a polish which makes him a match for most of the top-flight grapplers of the moment. He is big and fast and brainy and is fast reaching the point at which he must be considered on the list of possible successors to "Three Deem" London, champion of the world.

The Paxos-Middlekauf match will pack plenty of punch for the customarily fast-paced wrestling, but he is both as strong and fast and brainy as he is fast reaching the point at which he must be considered on the list of possible successors to "Three Deem" London, champion of the world.

THE SPORTLIGHT

By Paul Middlekauf.

Still Sticking Around.

THE peak of athletic ability is supposed to be somewhere between 25 and 28 years. But it is surprising how many of the bunch varying on 40, or a trifle past, continue to hold their place in the headlines. Tennis still has its Tilden. Baseball has Ruth, Maranville, Quinn, Vance and several others. Clarence De Mar is warming up for another marathon.

And MacDonal Smith is back in Carnoustie, where he started his golf, getting ready for another British open. Smith tied for the United States title in 1910, and 21 years later he will be one of the main ones to watch, both at Carnoustie and Inverness.

And these veterans are not merely hanging on. They are well up towards the front, with some time left to go.

Batting Leaders.
THE six-months' war to locate the batting leadership in the two leagues will be as keen as ever this season. There is still no Ty Cobb around to hang up the banner in 12 out of 13 consecutive seasons. Bill Terry, the Giant star, will be another leading starter, and he will again be closely pursued by such consistent hitters as Babe Herman, Chuck Klein, Frank O'Doul and one or two others. Simmons and Gehrig remain two of the best in the American league and one of the two should lead the parade.

One of the most interesting of the canonizing programs will be the return match between Hack Wilson and Babe Ruth. Hack came from behind with a succession of loud volleys last September to overhaul the Babe and then open a rather wide gap by closing day.

This may be the year when one of the younger stars is due, but it is doubtful that any outsider can crowd out these two before the season is over. They have had the habit too long and home-run hitting isn't a matter of fast legs. Not often enough to count.

The Babe is set to be all steamed up about recapturing his old crown, but just as much steam is bottled in Hack Wilson's broad system in connection with foiling this ambition. Hack has discovered that the crown fits nicely and he has no idea of going bareheaded next winter.

Most Graceful Ball Club.
SPRING revives old arguments in sport, especially those connected with baseball. One of these recently opened concerns the most graceful club that could be picked from the all-time all-around up to date. This would be my choice:

Catcher—Johnny Kling, Cubs.
Pitcher—Walter Johnson, Washington.
First Base—Hal Chase, Yankees.
Second Base—Larry Lajoie, Cleveland.
Shortstop—Dave Bancroft, Phillies and Giants.
Third Base—Jimmy Collins, Boston.
Left Field—George Burns, Giants.
Center Field—Tris Speaker, Boston and Cleveland.
Right Field—Frank Schulte, Cubs.

This list doesn't name any entry from the Athletics, with all their great teams. But they have more than one or two who are close, including Mickey Vernon, catcher; Chief Bender, pitcher; Melvin at first, and Collins at second, with Jack Barry at short worth some mention. There isn't much to choose at third between Jimmy Collins and Bill Bradley, of Cleveland, and Heinie Zimmerman wasn't far from this pair. Heinie had no superior around the plate when it came to a matter of grace in swinging a bat.

The most graceful of all the star teams players happen to be a woman—Suzanne Lenglen. Among the golfers it would be a battle between Joyce Wethered and Bobby Jones. In the ring, Jim Corbett has had no superior in this department.

Larry Lajoie looked easier at the plate than any batter baseball has ever known. He had less tension in his 200-pound system while waiting for the pitcher to hook one over. His attitude seemed to be carefree and half-lazy, as he held the bat so loosely it looked as if it might slip from his hands.

The quickest playing golfer has been George Duncan. The star sent is so full of tension, he played up, that he could afford no delay in hitting the ball. I remember.

Baseball Heads Pay Respects to Leaders

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 29.—(AP)—A group of Cleveland friends tonight met the train which brought the body of Ernest S. Barnard, president of the American baseball league, to the scene of some of his greatest years—and to the place where he will rest for all time.

Accompanying the body from Chicago, the last lap of the journey from Rochester, Minn., where he died Friday, were a group of baseball notables, including Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, and Harry Grabiner, secretary of the Chicago White Sox. Grabiner will represent Charles Comiskey, White Sox owner, who was kept away by illness. The other seven club owners will join Grabiner as honorary pallbearers.

The White Sox have cancelled a scheduled exhibition with the New York Giants on Tuesday, the day of the funeral. Other clubs may follow suit, although no general order has been issued. Frank Navin, vice president of the league and owner of the Detroit club, announced that all American league teams playing Tuesday or Wednesday, the day of Ban Johnson's funeral, will wear crepe on their arms and pause a moment before the game out of respect to Johnson and Barnard.

The body was taken to an undertaking parlor where it will lie in state until Tuesday morning. Then it will be moved to Masonic hall where mourners may pass until the funeral services in charge of Kenesaw M. Landis, at 2 p. m. Burial will be in Knollwood mausoleum, Cleveland.

Oil De Bouff Wins French Turf Feature
AUTREUIL, France, March 29.—(AP)—Oil De Bouff, owned by A. De Anchoren, won the Grand Prix Du Printemps, a two and one-half mile steeplechase, here today. Largo was second, two and a half lengths behind the winner.

Oil De Bouff paid 6 to 5 in winning the major share of the $2,500 purse. Ten started.

Fishermen's Race Sure, Captain Says
HALIFAX, N. S., March 29.—(AP)—Captain Ben Pine, veteran racing fisherman skipper of Gloucester, Mass., expressed confidence today that an international fishermen's race would be sailed this fall. Captain Pine's new schooner, the Gertrude I. Thebeand, won last year's series from the Canadian champion, Blue Nose, off Gloucester.

TARZAN, LORD OF THE JUNGLE No. 43

"Surely thou must have heard of Nimmr?" inquired Zeyd. "Sometimes the Galla speak of it, said Tarzan, 'but always I thought it no more real than their other legends. And so,' he said, half to himself. 'Ibn Jad undertook this dangerous journey on the mere word of a magician.' From Zeyd's description of the white man who had come to Ibn Jad's camp, Tarzan was not positive whether it was Stimbol or Blake. He determined to find out.

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

"As a boy thou wert raised in this country, Fejjuan," she said. "Dost think Zeyd could make his way alone to El-Guad?" "Nay!" replied the Galla slave shortly. The girl stifled a sob. "Fejjuan mourns with thee, Ateja," said the black, "for Zeyd was a good man." And then Ateja, overjoyed, heard from Fejjuan how Fahd had contrived to make the sheik believe that Zeyd had sought the sheik's life.
